CHILD IS FACING REFORMATORY TERM FOLLOWING CONVICTION

Jury Finds 6-Year-Old
Guilty Of Manslaughter

PAINTSVILLE, Ky., May 24.—His childish mind unable to grasp the seriousness of his case, Carl Mahan, 6, returned to court today while arguments continued on whether he must go to the reformatory to serve fifteen years for killing his playmate, Cecil Van Hoose, 8.

Carl shot Cecil with a shotgun after the two engaged in a quarrel over a piece of scrap iron. Cecil died with seventeen shot in his small body.

Yesterday a jury decided the 6-year old boy knew what he was doing when he ran into his home, climbed up on a chair and took down his father's shotgun to shoot his chum. Accordingly the jury recommended Carl be found guilty of manslaughter.

The defense will seek to have the sentence set aside, arguing that Kentucky has no law under which a child under ten years can be sent to a reformatory, no matter how serious his offense.

Arguments in this point are to be heard today.

Carl sat on his father's lap while the court proceedings went on. He smiled shyly at the jurors and at court attaches who spoke to him. He listened to a witness recount the shooting, telling how Cecil started to run behind a tree as Carl laboriously pulled the heavy gun up to aim it. Cecil did not reach the tree.

The child's defendant prattled to his father while the story was told and while Judge J. W. Butcher instructed the jury. Judge Butcher told the men that if they believed Carl was too small to know what he was doing the boy should not be found guilty.

The case first was taken to the juvenile court, but when no decision could be reached, a jury was impaneled to decide what should be done with the child.

If the sentence is upheld, Carl's boyhood will be spent in a reform school and he would not get his liberty until he became of age.

PENNSY PASSENGER COACH JUMPS TRACK

NEW LEXINGTON, O., May 24.—The rear coach of Pennsylvania passenger train No. 971, en route from Zanesville to Cincinnati, left the rails and partially turned over at Del Carbo, ten miles east of here, today.

Glen Nichols, of Lancaster, the only passenger aboard the coach, jumped up and grasped the air signal cord as the car left the rails.

The engineer, warned by the signal, quickly brought the train to a stop.

No one was injured although the roadbed was badly torn up for a quarter of a mile.

Nichols, by his presence of mind, was accredited with averting a more serious wreck.

Traffic over the line was tied up for several hours.

FREE GUARDSMAN IN SHOOTING CASE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 24.—Glenn Jennings, coast guardsman, has been acquitted of second degree manslaughter charges in connection with the death of Jacob Hanson of Niagara Falls. The case has attracted wide attention because it involved methods of prohibition enforcement along the Canadian border.

A jury in federal court returned the verdict of not guilty late last night. It was Jennings' second trial, the first jury having disagreed.

Hanson, former secretary of the Niagara Falls Lodge of Elks, was shot and fatally wounded when he failed to halt his automobile at the command of coast guardsmen patrolling Lewiston Hill last May.

The state contended that Jennings thought Hanson was a rum runner, while defense counsel said Hanson refused to stop because he believed Jennings was a bandit.

SENATE WILL VOTE ON PROPOSAL TO MODIFY ITS SECRECY RULE

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The senate will be called upon to vote on a proposed modification of its secrecy rule before the rules committee begins Monday an investigation of recent violations of the rule by senators. Wesley L. Jones, assistant senate leader announced today.

Jones said he would seek consideration of his pending rules amendment as soon as the senate disposes of the pending reapportionment bill late today or tomorrow.

Developments of the last few days point to the immediate necessity for a change in the present situation," Jones asserted, referring to attempts of some senate leaders to intimidate Washington newspapermen and thus prevent further publication of authentic executive roll calls and debate.

Jones' amendment proposed the senate go into executive sessions to consider nominations only when a majority of the senate so votes, the vote to be taken in open session. Senator Black, Dem., Ala., has a substitute pending in which he proposes to abolish entirely all secret sessions for consideration of nominations.

A partial but representative poll of the senate by the United Press revealed thirty-six to fourteen in favor of modifying or abolishing secret sessions on presidential nominations, indicating the Jones amendment can be adopted if ever brought to a vote. Heretofore, numerous similar proposals have been made but they have always been referred to the rules committee for consideration. There they have all died a natural death.

The rules fight absorbed congressional attention as the house moved forward with machine precision toward passing next Tuesday the tariff bill with some farm bloc amendments. An arrangement has been made to prevent the offering of any amendments from the floor which means the bill will be passed with only those amendments sanctioned by the leaders upon recommendation of the farm bloc. The fourth conference of the farm bill conferees, postponed yesterday, was held today, in an effort to agree on a plan whereby the disputed debenture clause will be brought back to the senate for another vote, in anticipation of its elimination from the bill.

HOTEL CLEVELAND DAMAGED BY FIRE

CLEVELAND, O., May 24.—Service in the Hotel Cleveland continued unimpacted today despite a fire which swept a portion of the 13-story structure late yesterday and sent guests and employees scurrying to safety.

The fire broke out in the pent house atop the hotel. Dense clouds of smoke penetrated the hotel and caused general alarm.

Firemen quickly got the blaze under control. Meantime, thousands of persons gathered in the public square and traffic was hopelessly entangled.

CHANGES HIS MIND

NEW YORK, May 24.—Henry J. Pierce not only has consented that his wife return to the United States on the Graf Zeppelin but has himself left to join her on the trip—if of course, she still wants to make it.

Pierce, New York broker, embarked on the Mauretania to greet his darling partner. Once loud in his protestation against his wife's making the trip, Pierce said, "I don't think Mr. Pierce will repeat the adventure, but if she insists, naturally I will make the next flight to America with her."

"If she goes Zeppelin, I'm going Zeppelin, too," he said.

FORD GUEST OF JEWS

Man Who Once Attacked Race Praises Jewish Philanthropist.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Henry Ford, who once publicly apologized for his anti-Semitic activities, was the guest at a dinner given by Jews here last night and, in a statement, complimented a member of the race.

Apparently all the rancor which was caused by the editorial campaign of Ford's Dearborn Independent had vanished. When Ford's name was mentioned by the toastmaster the diners rose.

The dinner, held at the Commodore Hotel, was in honor of David A. Brown, philanthropist of Detroit and New York. While Ford did not speak, he issued the following statement:

"I am happy to come here tonight to pay a tribute of admiration to my good friend David A. Brown and through him to the great race which is proud and fortunate to count him among its own. David A. Brown is a shining example of the great benevolence of the Jewish people, their philanthropy, their eagerness to make this world better, to educate the untutored, to heal the sick, to care for the orphans; their intent and intelligent participation in all that makes for civic righteousness and social justice stamps them a great people—and David A. Brown is one of their greatest and finest sons."

More than 2,000 persons attended the dinner.

GIRL TESTIFIES IN DEFENSE OF FORMER MAYOR FOR BRIBERY

Tells Of Relations With Dry Raider Who Is Accuser

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., May 24.—Peter J. Groh, ousted mayor of Dover, on trial here on charges of accepting a $500 bribe from Edward Little, former state prohibition agent, was expected to take the stand in his own defense today.

Groh was expected to deny he took the money and to charge that the bills were "planted" in his clothing by dry agents.

Defense counsel announced their intention to show that Groh was trying to trap what he supposed were bootleg runners when the money passed to him.

Miss Irene Ingler, 20, waitress at an inn near here, who was used as an aid by Little in his raiding expeditions in this section, according to testimony of the former agent, was the sole witness for the defense.

Miss Ingler told of a trip to a boarding house in Columbus in company with Little.

Mrs. Hallie Bagent, owner of the house in Columbus, also was expected to be a witness today.

Henry Bowers, 71-year-old chief of defense counsel for Groh, said Mrs. Bagent will testify as to familiarity between Little and Miss Ingler while they were guests at her house.

The state rested its case late yesterday.

The defense introduced five men from Dayton as character witnesses who testified that Little's reputation was "bad."

Groh was removed from office recently by Gov. Myers V. Cooper who investigated charges against him.

CHARLES SCHWAB OPTIMISTIC

NEW YORK, May 24.—Charles M. Schwab was optimistic about business.

In his address today before the American Iron and Steel Institute of which he is president, Schwab declared that more steel was used last year than ever before. While the automobiles, railroad and building lines have been the three largest users of steel, he predicted that road building, demands for bridges and vehicular tunnels and airplane manufacturing, will further increase the demand for the commodity—the backbone of American industrial life.

Despite the rosy outlook, Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, warned however, against being too self-satisfied.

The steel industry is enjoying its greatest peace time prosperity, he said, and is experiencing its greatest demand in its history, but has its problems, worries and dangers to be on guard about.

Death in the electric chair for James T. Nevins, Cleveland slayer appeared certain today as President Hoover commuted a federal sentence imposed on Nevins for a lesser offense through the mails.

Nevins, an ex-lake sailor, killed Don Prentiss, former Detroit automobile salesman, while the two were confined in the county jail here.

Federal authorities refused to drop their charge and it seemed that Nevins would not be executed until he had served his federal sentence.

WAR DECLARED

NANKING, China, May 24.—A mandate of the state council was issued today formally declaring war on Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang, who has gathered his forces in Chengchow, Province of Honan, with the avowed intention of overthrowing Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek and the present Nanking leadership.

Coroner Swing said Stern left two notes addressed to relatives which he refused to open. He said he would turn the notes over to the persons to whom they were addressed.

Stern was married only a few months ago.

XENIA ON PROPOSED NEW ROUTE PLANNED FOR DIXIE HIGHWAY

Change Would Bring Traffic Through This City

Xenia would be included on the route of the Dixie highway under a plan which became known Thursday as a result of a reported attempt to have the route of this important highway moved to a point east, thus eliminating Dayton, Piqua, Lima and several other cities from the through-state road.

At present the highway follows route No. 25 out of Toledo to Cincinnati, passing through Perrysburg, Bowling Green, Findlay, Lima, Wapakoneta, Sidney, Piqua, Dayton and hence through Miami, Franklin and Cincinnati.

Under the proposed scheme, the highway would be routed out of Toledo to Findlay over route No. 25 and hence over No. 53 through Kenton, Bellefontaine, Urbana, Springfield and Xenia where route No. 42 would be followed into Lebanon, Sharonville and Cincinnati.

One advantage of the new proposed route is that it would shorten the distance from Toledo to Cincinnati for motorists.

Dayton civic leaders are planning to wage a bitter fight against any proposed change in the route that would eliminate Dayton and threaten to carry the fight to Governor Cooper if necessary.

Dayton takes the stand that the adoption of the new route would divert thousands of tourists from that city each year. That disadvantage would work as an advantage to Xenia for the reason the tourists would strike this city instead, it is asserted by local proponents of the movement.

NEPHEW OF MAYOR COMMITS SUICIDE

CINCINNATI, O., May 24.—A verdict of suicide was returned by Coroner F. C. Swing today in the death of Alfred M. Stern, 25, nephew of Mayor Murray Seasongood who was found dead in his automobile on the third floor of a garage here last night after relatives had conducted a 10-hour search.

No motive for suicide was learned.

Coroner Swing said Stern left two notes addressed to relatives which he refused to open. He said he would turn the notes over to the persons to whom they were addressed.

Stern was married only a few months ago.

RESTRAIN TAPLINS FROM CONTROLLING WHEELING RAILWAY

Van Sweringens Halt Coup; Plan Quash Motion

CLEVELAND, O., May 24.—Motion to quash an order restraining them from taking full possession of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad was expected to be filed by the Taplins in court here as the next step in their effort to oust the Van Sweringens from control of the system.

Judge Alvin J. Pearson issued an injunction last night after the Taplins, in a "rump" session following the annual meeting of the Wheeling, voted to oust directors and officers of the road, installed themselves and demanded that the system be turned over to them.

Justification of their ouster of the old directorate was based on the Taplin contention that the directors were elected by Allegheny corporation stock illegally held by the Van Sweringens interests.

Right of the Van Sweringens to control stock of the Wheeling through their Allegheny corporation is being investigated by the interstate commerce commission at Washington. The commission is probing whether the Van Sweringens sought to evade the divestiture order issued last March when stock was transferred to the holding company.

This question and the Van Sweringens plan to include the Wheeling in their Nickel Plate merger, will come up before the commission June 5. A conflicting petition in the Nickel Plate deal has been filed by the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway, a Taplin holding.

In line with the four-party battle plan of the Van Sweringens, petitions were filed yesterday with the commission to grant O. P. Van Sweringens authority to become a director of the Pere Marquette railway, for J. J. Bernet, president of the Erie, to become president of the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Hocking Valley and Pere Marquette, and to place other Van Sweringens men in important posts with these railroads.

Acquisition of the Pere Marquette by the C. and O., a Van Sweringens road, has been approved by the commission.

Another action pending before the commission which has caused friction in the rival camps is whether the Wheeling can enter the New Cleveland terminal, a Van Sweringens development, and sell its property to the Van Sweringens to be used as an approach to the station.

This action is to be decided this summer and if the Wheeling is forbidden to dispose of its property to the terminals group, as the Taplins urge, the terminal interests in finding a new way out of the station, and opening of the depot, scheduled for January 1, 1930, will be delayed many months.

BRIDGE FALLS AND ONE KILLED

Five Hurt; Structure Weakened By Grass Fires

ZANESVILLE, O., May 24.—Grass fires which weakened its superstructure were blamed today for the collapse of a bridge on the abandoned Southern Ohio Public Service Company traction lines near here late yesterday in which one man was killed and five others injured.

J. R. Seary, 34, was killed. The men were crossing the bridge in a gondola car loaded with scrap iron when the trestle gave way. The car and its human cargo were hurled to the valley thirty-five feet below.

The others injured included Homer Snelling, 52, Thomas McVey, 48; Willis Harter, 36; Forest Sunkel, 25, and Edward Jones, 28, all of Newark.

ENDURANCE FLYERS EXULTANT AS FLIGHT GOAL SEEMS NEARER

FORT WORTH, Texas, May 24.—Two exultant young fliers, one a former railroad mechanic and the other an ex-cowboy, guided their monoplane Fort Worth firmly on its monotonous course through a cloudless sky over Meacham Field today, their endurance record goal almost in sight.

If all goes well, the two, Reg Robbins, 26, and Jim Kelly, 23, will pass their fifth day in the air with the rebuilt plane today. Their immediate goal is to remain aloft until 7:13 p. m. tomorrow, when they would establish a mark one hour longer than the 150 hours forty minutes set in January by

UNABLE TO TESTIFY

Helen Louise Buschmann, 21, former Lake Erie college girl, was unable to testify in a $250,000 suit filed by her guardian against a transportation company at Painesville, O., for damages when struck by a motor bus as she was crossing a highway more than a year ago. Miss Buschmann remained in a coma for six months after the accident. Her condition made her unable to take the stand, it was said.

JUDGE HOUGH LEADS ATTACKING FORCES AGAINST OWN HOME

Commands Blue Army In Panel Attack On Columbus

COLUMBUS, O., May 24.—A house was divided against itself and a judge against his courtroom as a thin red line of panel heroes fought to defend Columbus, today.

The first blue army corps, from Dayton, commanded by Major General Benson W. Hough was at the front of the attack upon the city where General Hough has his home and presides over the federal court room.

And in the thick of the fight was the 37th Division, Ohio National Guard, Hough's own division, led by officers, many of whom live in Columbus.

The mimic armies were engaged in the final struggle of the army air-ground maneuvers and it was considered highly probable that Columbus would be "taken" before dark.

And Major General James E. Fechet, chief of the air corps, who visited at Norton Field for a short time Thursday, got tangled up in the war, enroute to Dayton by plane.

His ship bore no red or blue ribbons and he hadn't gone far towards Dayton when three Red army pursuit planes mistook him for an enemy observer and "brought him down in flames."

The Red army maintained its superiority in the air today.

Five bombing planes, protected by eighteen pursuit planes were observed over Columbus, late Thursday, headed for enemy territory. They gave the higher officers of the Blue army a taste of war, dropping mimic bombs on camps representing division headquarters.

Two of the enemy division command posts were knocked out for two hours each and four others were out of commission for six hours each. This cut communication to the front lines and handicapped the Blue advance seriously.

The war between the Reds and the Blues has many advantages over real war, one of them being that there is a definite time for the end of it.

PLANES POISED FOR FLIGHT IF WEATHER FAVORABLE FRIDAY

American Crew And French To Start From Maine

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 24.—A French-American trans-Atlantic airplane race seemed almost at hand today as crews of the monoplanes Yellow Bird and Green Flash awaited favorable weather for their departures for Paris and Rome, respectively.

It appeared that neither plane would get away before tomorrow. Heavy rain persists over the mid-Atlantic and high shifting winds prevail over the remainder of the route.

Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre, the French pilots, brought their big Bernard plane here from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., in two hours, twenty-two minutes yesterday. It was believed they would take off for Paris at the same time the Green Flash, which has been weatherbound here for three days, starts for Rome.

The American aviators are Roger Q. Williams and Capt. Lewis Vancey. Armand Lott, Jr., backer of the French flight, will accompany Lefevre and Assolant.

Arrangements have been made for a coast guard amphibian plane to act as escort to the trans-Atlantic fliers, accompanying them 200 or 300 miles out over the ocean and reporting their progress back by radio.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., May 24.—After two failures in attempts to set a new refueling duration record for airplanes, the crew of the Bellanca monoplane Three Musketeers planned to take the ship aloft today for a third effort.

Martin Jensen, trans-Pacific flier, was angry yesterday when H. B. Clarke brought the Three Musketeers to earth for repairs, but reconsidered his announced intention to quit the project entirely.

William Urbich is the third pilot.

HINTS WEDDING TO TAKE PLACE SOON

LAREDO, Tex., May 24.—Partially confirming reports that the wedding of Miss Anne Morrow to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is not far distant, Dwight W. Morrow, United States ambassador to Mexico, remarked here that the event probably will be celebrated while he is in the United States on a vacation.

The ambassador arrived from Mexico City yesterday, accompanied by an escort of soldiers. He left by train and will arrive in Englewood, N. J., early next week.

Morrow refused to give out any definite information, smilingly waving aside questions as to the date for the wedding.

The ambassador said he is bound directly for his home to join his family. He would not comment on the plot to kidnap his daughter, Constance.

Mechanic Struck By Prop Trying To Start Motor

COLUMBUS, O., May 24.—Sergeant Frank Deeman, 28, mechanic attached to the Ninety-Fourth Pursuit Squadron, Selfridge Field, Mich., died here today, the victim of a propeller which hit him when an airplane motor backfired.

Lt. Hines of Selfridge Field, was preparing to take the plane up when the motor died. Deeman was standing by and unaware, as was Lieut. Hines, that the motor was pre-ignited. He stepped in and gave the crank a twist. He was struck over the head and several ribs were broken. He also was injured internally.

Sergeant Deeman had been stationed at Selfridge Field for four years. He was formerly with the British army in India. His death marked the third since the army air-ground maneuvers began here ten days ago.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Charles M. Schwab is optimistic about business.

In his address today before the American Iron and Steel Institute of which he is president, Schwab declared that more steel was used last year than ever before. While the automobiles, railroad and building lines have been the three largest users of steel, he predicted that road building, demands for bridges and vehicular tunnels and airplane manufacturing, will further increase the demand for the commodity—the backbone of American industrial life.

Despite the rosy outlook, Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, warned however, against being too self-satisfied.

The steel industry is enjoying its greatest peace time prosperity, he said, and is experiencing its greatest demand in its history, but has its problems, worries and dangers to be on guard about.

NEPHEW OF MAYOR COMMITS SUICIDE

CINCINNATI, O., May 24.—A verdict of suicide was returned by Coroner F. C. Swing today in the death of Alfred M. Stern, 25, nephew of Mayor Murray Seasongood who was found dead in his automobile on the third floor of a garage here last night after relatives had conducted a 10-hour search.

No motive for suicide was learned.

Coroner Swing said Stern left two notes addressed to relatives which he refused to open. He said he would turn the notes over to the persons to whom they were addressed.

Stern was married only a few months ago.

XENIA ON PROPOSED NEW ROUTE PLANNED FOR DIXIE HIGHWAY

Change Would Bring Traffic Through This City

Xenia would be included on the route of the Dixie highway under a plan which became known Thursday as a result of a reported attempt to have the route of this important highway moved to a point east, thus eliminating Dayton, Piqua, Lima and several other cities from the through-state road.

At present the highway follows route No. 25 out of Toledo to Cincinnati, passing through Perrysburg, Bowling Green, Findlay, Lima, Wapakoneta, Sidney, Piqua, Dayton and hence through Miamisburg and Franklin to Cincinnati.

Under the proposed scheme, the highway would be routed out of Toledo to Findlay over route No. 25 and hence over No. 53 through Kenton, Bellefontaine, Urbana, Springfield and Xenia where route No. 42 would be followed into Lebanon, Sharonville and Cincinnati.

One advantage of the new proposed route is that it would shorten the distance from Toledo to Cincinnati for motorists.

Dayton civic leaders are planning to wage a bitter fight against any proposed change in the route that would eliminate Dayton and threaten to carry the fight to Governor Cooper if necessary.

Dayton takes the stand that the adoption of the new route would divert thousands of tourists from that city each year. That disadvantage would work as a disadvantage to Xenia for the reason the tourists would strike this city instead, it is asserted by local proponents of the movement.

RESTRAIN TAPLINS FROM CONTROLLING WHEELING RAILWAY

Van Sweringens Halt Coup; Plan Quash Motion

CLEVELAND, O., May 24.—Motion to quash an order restraining them from taking full possession of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad was expected to be filed by the Taplins in court here as the next step in their effort to oust the Van Sweringens from control of the system.

Judge Alvin J. Pearson issued an injunction last night after the Taplins, in a "rump" session following the annual meeting of the Wheeling, voted to oust directors and officers of the road, installed themselves and demanded that the system be turned over to them.

Justification of their ouster of the old directorate was based on the Taplin contention that the directors were elected by Allegheny corporation stock illegally held by the Van Sweringens interests.

Right of the Van Sweringens to control stock of the Wheeling through their Allegheny corporation is being investigated by the interstate commerce commission at Washington. The commission is probing whether the Van Sweringens sought to evade the divestiture order issued last March when stock was transferred to the holding company.

This question and the Van Sweringens' plan to include the Wheeling in their Nickel Plate merger, will come up before the commission June 5. A conflicting petition in the Nickel Plate deal has been filed by the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway, a Taplin holding.

In line with the four-party battle plan of the Van Sweringens, petitions were filed yesterday with the commission to grant O. P. Van Sweringens authority to become a director of the Pere Marquette railway, for J. J. Bernet, president of the Erie, to become president of the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Hocking Valley and Pere Marquette, and to place other Van Sweringens men in important posts with these railroads.

Acquisition of the Pere Marquette by the C. and O. and a Van Sweringens plan, has been approved by the commission.

Another action pending before the commission which has caused friction in the rival camps is whether the Wheeling can enter the new Cleveland terminal, a Van Sweringens development, and sell its property to the Van Sweringens to be used as an approach to the station.

This action is to be decided this summer and if the Wheeling is forbidden to dispose of its property to the terminals group, as the Taplins urge, the terminal interests stand to lose millions of dollars in finding a new way out of the station, and opening of the depot, scheduled for January 1, 1930, will be delayed many months.

BRIDGE FALLS AND ONE KILLED

Five Hurt; Structure Weakened By Grass Fires

ZANESVILLE, O., May 24.—Grass fires which weakened its superstructure were blamed today for the collapse of a bridge on the abandoned Southern Ohio Public Service Company traction lines near here late yesterday in which one man was killed and five others injured.

R. Seary, 34, was killed.

The men were crossing the bridge in a gondola car loaded with scrap iron when the trestle gave way. The car and its human cargo were hurled to the valley thirty-five feet below.

The others injured included Homer Snelling, 62, Thomas Mcvey, 48, Willis Harder, 36, Forest Sunkel, 25, and Edward Jones, 28, all of Newark.

MISS WILLYS TO WED

TOLEDO, O., May 24.—Miss Virginia Willys, daughter of John N. Willys, president of the Willys Overland Company here, and her fiancé, Luis de Azkure of Buenos Aires, obtained a wedding license at the registry office in London, England, Thursday.

MAN'S BODY FOUND

SANDUSKY, O., May 24.—Police today were attempting to identify the body of a man found in Mills Creek here by two boys. Marks on the man's clothing indicated he was Joseph Feiss of Cleveland.

ENDURANCE FLYERS EXULTANT AS FLIGHT GOAL SEEMS NEARER

FORT WORTH, Texas, May 24.—Two exultant young fliers, one a former railroad mechanic and the other an ex-cowboy, guided their monoplane Fort Worth firmly on its monotonous course through a cloudless sky over Meacham Field today, their endurance record goal almost in sight.

If all goes well, the two, Reg Robbins, 26, and Jim Kelly, 23, will pass their fifth day in the air with the rebuilt plane today. Their immediate goal is to remain aloft until 7-13 p. m., tomorrow, when they would establish a mark one hour longer than the 150 hours forty minutes set in January by the army plane Question Mark.

Considering that the Question Mark had behind it the entire resources of the U. S. army, including its many crack pilots to select from, while the two young fliers guiding the Fort Worth have practically their entire fortunes tied up in their ship and one of them has only six months flying experience, the flight appears all the more remarkable to those here who have been following the flight.

At 3:33 a. m. today, the fliers equalled one previous sustained flight record. This was the mark of 112 hours set by the Graf Zeppelin in its flight from Germany to the United States last year.

UNABLE TO TESTIFY

Helen Louise Buschmann, 21, former Lake Erie college girl, was unable to testify in a $250,000 suit filed by her guardian against a transportation company at Painesville, O., for damages when struck by a motor bus as she was crossing a highway more than a year ago. Miss Buschmann remained in a coma for six months after the accident. Her condition made her unable to take the stand, it was said.

JUDGE HOUGH LEADS ATTACKING FORCES AGAINST OWN HOME

Commands Blue Army In Panel Attack On Columbus

COLUMBUS, O., May 24.—A house was divided against itself and a judge against his courtroom as a thin red line of panel heroes fought to defend Columbus, today.

The first Blue army corps, from Dayton, commanded by Major General Benson W. Hough was at the front of the attack upon the city where General Hough has his home and presides over the federal court room.

And in the thick of the fight was the 37th Division, Ohio National Guard, Hough's own division, led by officers, many of whom live in Columbus.

The mimic armies were engaged in the final struggle of the army air-ground maneuvers and it was considered highly probable that Columbus would be "taken" before dark.

And Major General James E. Fechet, chief of the air corps, who visited at Norton Field for a short time Thursday, got tangled up in the war, enroute to Dayton by plane.

His ship bore no red or blue ribbons and he hadn't gone far towards Dayton when three Red army pursuit planes mistook him for an enemy observer and "brought him down in flames."

The Red army maintained its superiority in the air today.

Five bombing planes, protected by eighteen pursuit planes were observed over Columbus, late Thursday, headed for enemy territory. They gave the higher officers of the Blue army a taste of war, dropping mimic bombs on camps representing division headquarters.

Two of the enemy division command posts were knocked out for two hours each and four others were out of commission for six hours each. This cut communication to the front lines and handicapped the Blue advance seriously.

The war between the Reds and the Blues has many advantages over real war, one of them being that there is a definite time for the end of it.

MAN'S BODY FOUND

SANDUSKY, O., May 24.—Police today were attempting to identify the body of a man found in Mills Creek here by two boys. Marks on the man's clothing indicated he was Joseph Feiss of Cleveland.

PLANES POISED FOR FLIGHT IF WEATHER FAVORABLE FRIDAY

American Crew And French To Start From Maine

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 24.—A French-American trans-Atlantic airplane race seemed almost at hand today as crews of the monoplanes Yellow Bird and Green Flash awaited favorable weather for their departures for Paris and Rome, respectively.

It appeared that neither plane would get away before tomorrow. Heavy rain persists over the mid-Atlantic and high shifting winds prevail over the remainder of the route.

Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre, the French pilots, brought their big Bernard plane here from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., in two hours, twenty-two minutes yesterday. It was believed they would take off for Paris at the same time the Green Flash, which has been weatherbound here for three days, starts for Rome.

The American aviators are Roger Q. Williams and Capt. Lewis Yancey. Armand Lotti, Jr., backer of the French flight, will accompany Lefevre and Assolant.

Arrangements have been made for a coast guard amphibian plane to act as escort to the trans-Atlantic fliers, accompanying them 200 or 300 miles out over the ocean and reporting their progress back by radio.

HINTS WEDDING TO TAKE PLACE SOON

LAREDO, Tex., May 24.—Partially confirming reports that the wedding of Miss Anne Morrow to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is not far distant, Dwight W. Morrow, United States ambassador to Mexico, remarked here that the event probably will be celebrated while he is in the United States on a vacation.

The ambassador arrived from Mexico City yesterday, accompanied by an escort of soldiers. He left by train and will arrive in Englewood, N. J., early next week.

Morrow refused to give out any definite information, smilingly waving aside questions as to the date of the wedding.

The ambassador said he is bound directly for his home to join his family. He would not comment on the plot to kidnap his daughter, Constance.

BOYS BURNED WHEN GAS BOMB EXPLODES

STEUERSVILLE, O., May 24.—An old gas bomb, found at Brilliant, near here, may cost the sight of Charles Burrier, 12. The boy and three companions were severely burned when the bomb with which they were playing, exploded.

The others burned were Norman Downing, 14; Roger Downing, 8, and William Oakley, 12.

AUTOIST ACCUSED

BELLEFONTAINE, May 24.—A charge of manslaughter was on file today against R. G. Kerlin of Toledo who was arrested when he left a hospital here yesterday. Kerlin is accused in connection with the death of Frank Wiscup and Howard McAdams who were killed when Kerlin's car collided with one in which they were riding.

A LOVE AND MYSTERY STORY

CHAPTER XXXIX

A moment later Charlie, himself, came to his aid.

"Forgive me," he whispered. "Every moment, though you may not think it, I am getting better and better. All I need to finish the job is that cup of tea. You lead. I'll follow. Tea first—just a quick cup, eh?—and then—action!"

"Righto," responded Brown.

They left the room cautiously. Brown in advance. In the passage, Charlie paused, and leaned against the wall.

"Sure you can manage?" asked Brown, anxiously.

"Yes. The world's lovely," smiled Charlie. "Couple of ticks—that's all."

"I've got an idea!" said Brown, suddenly. "Wait a jiffy! I'll be back before you know it!"

"Where are you going?" demanded Brown.

But Brown did not wait to explain. He ran along the passage, and down the staircase. A minute later he returned.

"Come along," he whispered. "All clear now."

He seized Charlie's arm, and hurried him to the stairs.

"Whoa! What's up?" panted Charlie.

"I want you to get into the kitchen quick," answered Brown. "Don't want anybody to know. If they think you've got out of that room, they may try and do things, see? But if they don't, praps we can give 'em a surprise presently."

"But you're not going to tell me they didn't hear you bang the door in?" exclaimed Charlie.

"I only banged when it was thundering," said Brown. "I'm not always a fool!"

"By Jove, you're not," murmured Charlie.

Charlie's opinion of Brown increased during the next few seconds. Across the lounge hall window, or that part of it which bore a hole, was a plank. It formed no guarantee against intrusion, but it would fall with a signaling crash if anyone poked it inwards, and meanwhile it partially protected the room from prying eyes outside.

In the kitchen, shutters were drawn. These entirely covered the window and, once there, Charlie was safe from detection.

"Well done, Brown, well done," murmured Charlie, as he gazed around the kitchen, noted the shutters, and also the fire and the steaming kettle. "Between us, I verily believe, we shall do things."

"And we've got things to do!" retorted Brown.

"By God, we have," said Charlie. "Even the most zealous crusaders needed rest, and although neither Brown nor Charlie was in a mood to waste time, each realized that a few minutes' respite were necessary in order to recover from the effects of what they had just passed through and to gather fresh strength. Moreover, before deciding on their policy, they had to hear each other's stories."

Brown told his first, while the comforting tea performed its good work. We need not repeat Brown's story here, for the facts have been given. We know, too, the greater part of the narrative which Charlie subsequently related to Brown, a narrative which was listened to with quiet attention until it reached the point where the laborer's body had been discovered in the ditch.

"What—you mean he was dead?" exclaimed Brown.

"Stone dead," replied Charlie.

Brown clenched his fist, and stared very hard at the rough surface of the kitchen table at which they were sitting. The laborer—dead! It brought things very close. Why, only a few hours ago he and the laborer had sat in the shed together.

"Go on," said Brown.

Charlie looked at him curiously. Was that Brown's voice? It had a new quality in it, a quality that somehow commanded Charlie's respect.

"Yes, pretty rotten, isn't it?" grunted Charlie. "Rotten thinking of that poor fellow—still out there!"

"Go on," said Brown, gulping.

But Brown was to receive a worse shock in a minute. Charlie described the events that followed the discovery of Ted in the ditch, the conversation with Brill, the subsequent return to Coomber House, the finding of the staircase door open, and the passing through that door of Brill, Rupert and Jocelyn, just before he was knocked out.

Brown's eyes grew big with horror.

"You mean—she went down there?" he gasped.

"She did, Brown," answered Charlie, gravely. "And when you saw Brill at the foot of the stairs, he'd probably just come up from there."

"But the door's locked now!" cried Brown.

"Obviously it's locked," nodded Charlie. "It was locked when I began to come to, after the blow I received."

"Didn't you try to open it?" demanded Brown, jumping up.

"You try to open a locked door," retorted Charlie, "when you find a revolver pressed into your back, and a second revolver threatening you from a few yards off, I was or-enemy are outside. If one of 'em was down below, it might be different. And if we start banging on that door, they'll all come back—be sure of that—we shall be overpowered, and we may be doing more harm than good. But suppose," he went on, "one of us could slip away from here, telephone the police, and rake up an army of respectable people to come along here and help us till the police arrive—well, wouldn't that be the best plan, don't you think?"

Brown thought hard. Yes, there was something in the idea. But—to wait—

"You don't know what I feel like, with her down there, and us doing nothing!" he burst out, miserably.

"We would be doing something," answered Charlie, gently, "and I do know what you feel like. I am afraid that Miss Cunningham, whom I mention to you, is down there, too. Yes, old chap, I know just what you feel like!"

"All right," muttered Brown. "I'll do it. Only if I don't come back in—say—half an hour, then you mustn't wait any longer, but must go for that door like one o'clock."

"Hey, Steady on!" objected Charlie. "Who said you were going? Why not me?"

Brown hadn't thought of that.

And, as soon as he did, he rejected the thought.

"You could never do it," he declared, "not being as big as you are."

"My size would be a handicap," Charlie admitted.

"Of course, it would. I could be snappier. Find a window at the side somewhere, eh, and slip out that way. And, look here—while I'm gone, you could try and work on that door quietly—worry the lock, you know—try to get it open—there's quiet ways. For God's sake, get it open if you can—I'll do much better outside if I know you're trying."

"Don't worry, I'll try," responded Charlie. "I'll never stop trying. I'm sure it'll be no good, though, unless we get a bit more help. It's the jolly old police we want in here! So off you go, Brown, and good luck to you, and God bless you, my son."

The revolver was pressed into my back all the time I was going up, and all the time I was walking along the passage. Then they bundled me into the room where you found me, knocked me out again, the dirty hounds, and when I came to the second time I was bound and gagged. I seemed to lie there for hours. At last I managed to roll a bit across the floor—and then you came—and here we are. And now let's get to it. What's our plan?"

"Why, to smash that door in, of course!" replied Brown, already at the kitchen door.

"Wait a second, wait a second!" exclaimed Charlie. "Don't be in too much of a hurry. You won't be able to smash that door in."

"Why not?"

"It's not like the door upstairs. It's made to resist intruders, that door is—"

"Well, we can try, anyhow, can't we?" cried Brown. "You don't suppose I'm going to sit here and twiddle my thumbs?"

"We are neither of us going to sit here and twiddle our thumbs," Charlie promised. "All the same, the situation wants studying. Don't forget, Rupert is with Miss Marlowe—and don't forget that, since the storm has abated a little, we shall certainly be heard smashing away at the door, and our two sentries may come in upon us."

"If they do, it's two against two," said Brown.

"No, four against two," Charlie pointed out. "Two men against two men and two revolvers. That's why I say don't act hastily. We may come to crude methods in the end, but can't we hatch something a bit cleverer? As far as I can make out, we've got four people—plus at least two revolvers—little Ugly Mug, big Ugly Mug, Brill and that fellow who popped his head in at the window and who went off with Brill. By the way, what about that fellow? Do you suppose he was against us? He might have been just a passer-by—"

"What's it matter?" interrupted Brown, desperately. "There may be a thousand against us! But all I can think of is that girl down there, and if you haven't got a better plan, I'm going to smash my way through that door, yes, see if I don't!"

"Rightio—I'll help," sighed Charlie. "I'm not sure that we shouldn't try and establish communication with the outside world first, though."

"And waste more time?"

"Would it waste time? At the moment, we know that all the enemy are outside. If one of 'em was down below, it might be different. And if we start banging on that door, they'll all come back—be sure of that—we shall be overpowered, and we may be doing more harm than good. Brown thought hard. Yes, there was something in the idea. But—to wait—

"You don't know what I feel like, with her down there, and us doing nothing!" he burst out, miserably.

"We would be doing something," answered Charlie, gently, "and I do know what you feel like. I am afraid that Miss Cunningham, whom I mention to you, is down there, too. Yes, old chap, I know just what you feel like!"

"All right," muttered Brown. "I'll do it. Only if I don't come back in—say—half an hour, then you mustn't wait any longer, but must go for that door like one o'clock."

"Hey, Steady on!" objected Charlie. "Who said you were going? Why not me?"

Brown hadn't thought of that.

And, as soon as he did, he rejected the thought. "You could never do it," he declared, "not being as big as you are."

"My size would be a handicap," Charlie admitted.

"Of course, it would. I could be a snapper. Find a window at the side somewhere, eh, and slip out that way. And, look here—while I'm gone, you could try and work on that door quietly—worry the lock, you know—try to get it open—there's quiet ways. For God's sake, get it open if you can—I'll do much better outside if I know you're trying."

"Don't worry, I'll try," responded Charlie. "I'll never stop trying. I'm sure it'll be no good, though, unless we get a bit more help. It's the jolly old police we want in here! So off you go, Brown, and good luck to you, and God bless you, my son."

Members of the high school and the Rev. David Powers, head of the school, enjoyed a five course banquet which preceded a dancing party. Decorations featured the 1929 class colors, blue green and coral. The tables were beautifully decorated with sweet peas and green and pink triple candlesticks.

Smallest Independent Phone Exchange Is Complete Financial Success

Built by Midwestern Man for Use of Farmers in His District

WHAT is believed to be the smallest independent telephone exchange in the United States was built and is now owned and maintained by Luther Clark, 71, sometimes known as Santa Claus by the natives of Central Nebraska.

Clark built the telephone system for the use of the farmers in the middle and western districts of Nebraska and he now numbers about fifty subscribers on his list. It is the only means of communication between the farmers and ranchers who live within a radius of thirty miles of Clark's prairie home.

Through Clark's exchange it is possible for the subscribers to communicate and talk with New York, Chicago, San Francisco or any of the other large cities. Clark is lenient with his subscribers so far as payment of bills is concerned. If crops are bad the bills are cut proportionately. If there is a death in the family of one of the subscribers, the family gets a year's subscription free. When a customer fails to pay a bill, six months' time is allowed to settle the account and few of the prairie folk seldom fail to meet their bills.

Clark charges twenty-five dollars for a year's service. The exchange has been the only means for Clark to make a living for his family, each member of which takes turns at operating the central switchboard. Clark himself attends to line trouble when necessary. Mrs. Clark and the daughters, Martha and Vlasta, take turns at the board.

Telephone lines are strung along fences, trees and sometimes along regular telephone poles.

Clark says he may never be a rich man in worldly goods, but he is wealthy in friends and in the knowledge that he has done his community some valuable service through the medium of his telephone system.

DUGAN AND KIMBRO PLACES PADLOCKED UNDER COURT ORDER

The pool room and soft drink establishment operated by M. J. Dugan on N. Whiteman St., and the pool room of which Wheeler Kimbro, colored, E. Main St., is proprietor, were padlocked by county authorities at noon Friday under a temporary injunction granted by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy.

Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall filed charges in Common Pleas Court Friday in which he claimed both places were nuisances.

According to the complaints filed by Prosecutor Marshall, Dugan and Kimbro have each been convicted twice for liquor law violations.

Judge Gowdy granted the application and ordered both places closed pending a hearing on the charges. No date has been assigned for the joint hearing.

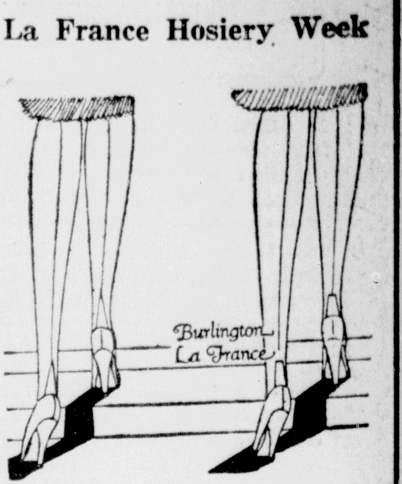

If the injunction is made permanent, both places will be closed for one year.

Saturday morning Troop No. 62, Boy Scout troop at the Home, which took second place last Saturday in the Tecumseh Area jamboree at Springfield, will be presented a leather plaque by the troop committee as its reward for this achievement. The troop will also have a jamboree of its own.

In the afternoon members of Cincinnati Vulture, No. 29, Forty and Eight Society, branch of the American Legion, will meet the older Home boys in a baseball game. The Vulture has planned interesting entertainment for the pupils Saturday evening. It is bringing its own orchestra for the occasion.

The Home band will give a concert in front of the Court House at 7 p. m. Saturday to aid in the American Legion poppy sale.

Col. Burton, superintendent, said a dress parade is planned for Sunday. Examinations are scheduled for next week and commencement exercises the week following.

On June 1 the officers of the R. O. T. C. unit are sponsoring a ball at the Home armory.

Inspectors Scott and Helmm, Columbus, made a preliminary inspection of the newly-completed hospital and two cottages at the institution Friday. The formal inspection will be held later.

Built by Midwestern Man for Use of Farmers in His District

WHAT is believed to be the smallest independent telephone exchange in the United States was built and is now owned and maintained by Luther Clark, 71, sometimes known as Santa Claus by the natives of Central Nebraska.

Clark built the telephone system for the use of the farmers in the middle and western districts of Nebraska and he now numbers about fifty subscribers on his list. It is the only means of communication between the farmers and ranchers who live within a radius of thirty miles of Clark's prairie home.

Through Clark's exchange it is possible for the subscribers to communicate and talk with New York, Chicago, San Francisco or any of the other large cities. Clark is lenient with his subscribers so far as payment of bills is concerned.

If crops are bad the bills are cut proportionately. If there is a death in the family of one of the subscribers, the family gets a year's subscription free. When a customer fails to pay a bill, six months' time is allowed to settle the account and few of the prairie folk seldom fail to meet their bills.

Clark charges twenty-five dollars for a year's service. The exchange has been the only means for Clark to make a living for his family, each member of which takes turns at operating the central switchboard. Clark himself attends to line trouble when necessary. Mrs. Clark and the daughters, Martha and Vlasta, take turns at the board.

Telephone lines are strung along fences, trees and sometimes along regular telephone poles.

Clark says he may never be a rich man in worldly goods, but he is wealthy in friends and in the knowledge that he has done his community some valuable service through the medium of his telephone system.

DUGAN AND KIMBRO PLACES PADLOCKED UNDER COURT ORDER

The pool room and soft drink establishment operated by M. J. Dugan on N. Whiteman St. and the pool room of which Wheeler Kimbro, colored, E. Main St., is proprietor, were padlocked by county authorities at noon Friday under a temporary injunction granted by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy.

Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall filed charges in Common Pleas Court Friday in which he claimed both places were nuisances.

According to the complaints filed by Prosecutor Marshall, Dugan and Kimbro have each been convicted twice for liquor law violations.

Judge Gowdy granted the application and ordered both places closed pending a hearing on the charges. No date has been assigned for the joint hearing.

If the injunction is made permanent, both places will be closed for one year.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A HEARTENING PROMISE—From the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same, my name shall be great among the Gentiles; and in every place incense shall be offered unto my name, and a pure offering: for my name shall be great among the heathen, saith the Lord of hosts.—Malachi 1:11.

JOB FOR 900,000 COLLEGE WOMEN

There are now 900,000 women in America whose mental caliber equals or surpasses that of the average college graduate—and there are jobs available for not more than 125,000 of them. Moreover, the number of intellectual women is constantly increasing while the jobs which interest them are decreasing in number.

Prof. Walter B. Pitkin of Columbia University presents these figures in the current issue of The North American Review after an intensive survey in which he has sought to determine the opportunities open to college graduates in all phases of business, the professions and arts.

"The intellectual woman's chance of finding work outside the home that will satisfy her superior mind is growing smaller every year, and not because of the antagonism of men but because such jobs are growing scarcer for every body," he asserts.

Women are invading business and the professions at a time when those fields are becoming so highly organized that fewer instead of more superior minds are necessary, and more and more jobs are being reduced to the routine of mechanical operations, says Professor Pitkin.

The new race of intellectually active women will never be content with the parasitical life of society women of the past, Prof. Pitkin believes. Consequently, its only recourse is to motherhood, which, he predicts, as civilization progresses will be regarded "as the greatest, as well as the hardest, of all the sciences." He doubts, however, that more than 100,000 of the 900,000 college-type women are physically fitted to bear and rear more than one or two children successfully.

The idea that women who are financially able should give themselves to politics and social reform before motherhood is derided by Prof. Pitkin. "Politics and social reform are ineffective while the world has so many low-grade people in it," says his North American Review article. "The best thing we can do is to breed more high-grade people to offset the inferior."

Your BROADWAY
By Walter Winchell And Mine

NEW YORK. — If you have followed the numerous excerpts on plays and players by flip reviewers in this corner, you will find a titter or two in the following list of sassy notes jotted down by those who found Shakespeare a bore. At dinner the other night, Frank J. Wiltach, who conducted a column long before he began serving Will Hayes, was reminiscing about Hamlet and Marlowe, Shakespearean opuses and critics. So engaging were his comments and reminiscences that they were swiped for your diversion. To hear Wiltach tell it, often the critic, unable to treat the plays of Shakespeare with dignity—which, of course, presupposes a certain degree of lovable sympathy—is prone to indulge in a few lively flashes of frivolity.

When the Amenities of Criticism come to be written, the section devoted to Shakespeare will have many scintillating pages. It is commonly supposed to be difficult to "expose what is good," but this does not apply to the Bard's plays. It is easy to belittle what is great. Shakespeare is a shining mark, and the actor who appears in one of his plays is an easy target to hit. So plays are that when some critic goes to see one of the plays they become as flippant as a court coquette in an old comedy.

Voltaire wrote of Hamlet that it was "a coarse and barbarous piece, which would not be tolerated by the lowest rabble of France and Italy." Hardly an amenity, you will probably say. But if anybody thinks that Shakespeare has not been scourged even by fellow Englishmen, let him read the works of Thomas Rymer, John Dennis, Aaron Hill and John Gildon. The first of these was the most vindictive and likewise the more amusing. One of his pleasantest was to the "wing effect": "There is not a man / but understands nature better; not a pug in Barbary that has not a truer taste of things."

Forgetting the frolicsome Shakespearean performances of Bernard Shaw, it may as well be admitted that the Bard, even in our day, is no wand again placed on the end of a pike. Ecclesiastically remarked at Club dinner, London, the O. 1903: "Beerbohm Tree has March, 1903: a most remarkable series of plays, with only an occasionally regrettable lapse into Shakespeare." The inimitable Max Beerbohm once remarked: "You see, we think it was enough honor to have bred Shakespeare; we don't have to read him."

There is no play by Shakespeare that has been so much the occasion for mirth as Hamlet. Late the play was presented by a company in Indiana. The paper next day said: "Hamlet" was produced at the Opera House last night. It was worse than expected. An Austin Tex., newspaper, under the heading, Current News Items, printed the following: "Rainstorm in Galveston, lasting twenty-eight minutes. "Hailstorm in Langtry, lasting ten minutes. "Windstorm in Houston, two hours. "Barnstormers, in 'Hamlet,' at Austin, one night."

The late Henry Watterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal once criticized a performance of Hamlet. He wrote as follows: "Hamlet" at the Macaulay Opera House last night. My God! said the woodcock, and it flew away. When the same company appeared at Atlanta, one of the papers said: "Hamlet" at the Opera House last night. The scenery was fine and the orchestra played some appropriate airs."

A critic of Denver, reviewing a performance of the play, wrote: "Mr. Prothus played 'Hamlet' at the Grand Opera House last night and played it hard till 12 o'clock." An historic genius presented "Hamlet" at Cheyenne, when the critic rose in his might and remarked: "The play 'Hamlet' was given at the Opera House last night. It has long been a question as to whether Bacon or Shakespeare was the author of the play. It can now be definitely ascertained. Let the graves of both men be opened. He who shall be found to have turned in his grave is the one who wrote 'Hamlet.'"

Joseph Addison, in 1711, said that "Richard the Third" was so popular that it "made all the high backs, all the high shoulders and high noses of the nation, the top of the fashion." And when "Richard" was presented at Bedford, Ind., one of the papers said: "The Embryo Dramatic Company played Richard the Third at the Opera House last night and they killed Richard in the second act so that they could catch an early train out of town."

CHARACTER BY CHEMISTRY

All sorts of curious improvements are predicted for mankind by members of the American Chemical Society, recently meeting. It is said the time may come when man won't have to build his own character but can depend on chemistry to do it. And if the chemists can discover what makes us stop growing, future generations may become a race of giants. Of course that would not be advisable as we would have to junk all our present furniture and other equipment. As to growing character by the chemistry and gland method that would take all the spiritual struggle out of life and leave us very much like the well-known worm.

CRUSADERS

Some men and women are born crusaders and some learn to crusade. Others are not born that way and never get that way. There is something, apparently inherent, though perhaps it is acquired, in some human beings which gives them a never-resting urge to make people over, to reform them, to do something to change their ways. The old lines of Hazlitt—"you can not expect people to be other than they are"—apparently teach them nothing. This busy minority sometimes even succeeds in forcing laws and eventually relegate the laws to the sad limbo of dead-letterism. Whether the crusader does anything to make a happier or a better world still remains a matter of doubt.

THE CHARM OF FRANKNESS

Frankness can give a person decided charm, if the frankness is about oneself. People who are excessively frank about the failings of their friends usually have little charm. People who are frank about their friends are not charming either. They are merely flatterers. And flattery in time makes one ill. But there are a few people who are frank about themselves. They are without pretense. If they have failed at something, they freely admit it. If they are not making a go of something that they used to be enthusiastic about, they come right out and say so in a natural manner. If they do things that are obviously what they should not do, they admit it. They do not try, hypocritically, to conceal it. Such people—and they are very few—have charm. They are invariably liked by their fellows, and they deserve to be.

PRETENSE

Speaking of frankness, there is probably no commoner fault among us mortals than the fault of pretense. It is possible to develop a great proficiency in pretending to wealth and distinction which we do not possess, and in pretending to have accomplishments and qualities which we would like to have but for which we are not willing to pay the price.

Who's Who and Timely ViewsPROPOSED SURVEY OF RECLAMATION PRO-JECTS OUTLINED
By DR. ELWOOD MEAD

(Elwood Mead was born at Patriot, Ind., Jan. 16, 1858. He is a graduate of Purdue university. He was a professor in the Colorado Agricultural college for several years, becoming affiliated with the U. S. Department of Agriculture in 1897. At the time he was a member of the faculty of the University of California for nine years. From 1907 to 1915 he was chairman of the state rivers and water supply commission at Victoria, Australia, later returning to the University of California. Since 1924 he has been federal commissioner of reclamation. He has written several books and articles on irrigation.)

An economic survey designed to determine the status of federal reclamation projects will be undertaken this summer.

Plans for the survey, which will include investigation of certain projects where works have been completed, others where construction still is under way and certain private projects in financial distress have been approved by the secretary of the interior, Ray Lyman Wilbur.

There is general agreement that the engineering operations of the bureau of reclamation are well conceived and capably carried out, but we are still drifting with regard to the economic principles and policies which should govern our conclusions as to feasibility or final development of projects. Reclamation requires more than canals and reservoirs.

The qualifications of settlers, the kind of agriculture which should be followed and in general, those factors which determine earning power and well-being and contentment of the people of the communities created are as important as the engineering factors. The results on a majority of the federal reclamation projects fully justify the national policy. A great wealth in land has been created, farmers are prosperous, and the payments required under

How to Achieve Beauty
BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Treat your hands kindly, give them just a little consideration, and they will reward you beautifully by being hands that you and everyone who sees you can admire.

Don't let them grow red and roughened from neglect, or stained with "work-a-day" looking from carelessness! Even workers' hands can be attractive if they are ever so simply protected.

If you are an athletic person or a busy housewife or a "just-as-busy" business lady, plan to keep a jar of hand cream or lotion in your club locker or kitchen or office and use it frequently, after washing or whenever your hands have been in water. And every bathroom, of course, should be equipped with hand lotion for all the family.

The housewife, in addition to this, may profitably keep a cut lemon convenient nearby to squeeze over her fingertips after grimy kitchen tasks. And if she can, she should work in gloves—rubber ones for when her hands are kept in water and old kid ones for cleaning.

A simple night treatment that will preserve the soft, smooth texture of the hands is taken as follows: Wash the hands thoroughly with a good, bland soap and water, using a soft nail brush on the nails and knuckles. Then dry carefully, pushing down the cuticle at the base of each nail with the towel. Next, smooth on a hand cream or the same rich nourishing cream you use for your face, if your hands are thin. Begin at the fingertips and smooth it over your hands as if it were a glove, working it toward the wrist and over the palm.

Now massage the cream into the skin. Start at the knuckles at the base of the first finger and massage with a rotary movement. Slide to second joint and rotate, then to the third, massaging around in the same way. Now pinch the fingertips outward to make them taper. Repeat this for each finger. Last, wring the hands together to work the cream well into the palms and backs of hands.

Large, awkward hands offer a special problem, and require special treatment. Of course, little can be done to change their shape, for that depends upon the bony structure mainly. But you can reduce the fleshy contours and make the fingers slimmer.

Wash them with a good reducing soap, rubbing the cake vigorously over the moistened hands until they are covered with the creamy lather. Let it stay on for several minutes before washing off. Then pat in a reducing cream or jelly to further the reducing process.

Another reducing method is to soak the hands in a basin of warm water to which several teaspoonfuls of epsom salts have been added. Dry them carefully afterwards, and apply a good astringent. The use of an astringent is to be recommended with any reducing treatment, since it is important to tighten the loosened skin which the dissolved tissues leave.

Behind the Scenes in Washington
By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — Probably no ordinarily regard him with the senator is so vehemently disliked, by folk who dislike him at all, which is a lot of folk do, as J. Heflin of Alabama.

Those who like him, like him just as enthusiastically. This is not exceptional. Plenty of public men are greatly admired by one kind of people and thoroughly hated by the opposite kind. The chasm between Senator Heflin's two groups simply is unusually wide, because the Alabama senator is an ultra-extreme character.

There are no neutrals, either. Heflin has nothing but hard-and-fast friends or dyed-in-the-wool enemies.

The curious thing is that Tom Heflin has a side to him which, when he chooses to turn it out, is pronounced delightful even by some individuals who the contracts are being made. There are other projects, however, where development has been slow, where settlers are struggling in all stages of discouragement and hardship, and where delinquency in payments has been an inevitable result.

The making of this investigation at an early date is regarded as desirable because the data which it is proposed to gather will be most helpful in determining what can and should be done to improve conditions and in aiding congress in enacting desirable legislation.

A large part of the field work would be done by members of the staff of the reclamation bureau. In addition, it is desired to employ three economic experts having no connection with the bureau of reclamation.

tinually interrupted the solemn farm relief debate, which they were eager to expedite. Rage and disgust marked their features as they streamed from the chamber whenever he gained the floor, delaying proceedings by hours.

Including his own, the Alabamian must muster 14 votes out of 96 in favor of his resolution reproaching the Brocktonians for the beer bottle which he asserted was hurled at him while speaking in their midst, but even those who gave him their ballots refused to remain in their seats to hear his oratory. Seldom had he as many as half a dozen senatorial listeners; frequently as few as three or four.

As the senate floor cleared, however, the galleries filled. Heflin evidently cared nothing whatever how much he annoyed his colleagues; he still had an audience.

It obviously was to the gallery crowd and the country at large, through the stenographic report and the newspapers, that he was addressing himself. The senators' flight from the sound of his voice would have been too humiliating for endurance if the Alabama legislator had been in the least interested in their opinion concerning him.

Twice in recent months I have heard the Alabamian's sanity openly questioned on the senate floor—both times by members of his own party.

The point is quite freely argued in the lobbies. However, the verdict appears to be that the Heflin mentality is perfectly normal. As one critic expressed it during the senator's recital of the Brockton incident: "Having hit on what he believes to be a popular theme with his selected audience, Tom doubtless has been climbing gradually to greater heights—but testing every foothold, as he clammers. It is safe to say he will stop the instant he senses political danger. He is not out of control for a minute."

Not many persons of this type can refer to him in anything but profane language, but a few are broadminded enough to admit that the Alabamian can be one of the most charming companions imaginable under favorable circumstances—if only, of course, his vis-a-vis is able to forget, for the time, that it is Tom Heflin he is associating with.

The senator's attractive side is his social side.

Originally Heflin appears to have been an amiable man. Unofficially he is affable and accommodating still. From the senate floor he hurls every vituperative term in the dictionary at the occupants of the press gallery, but in his personal capacity, between sessions, he will go to all sorts of trouble to do any one of them a favor.

His society manners are an elegant "southern gentleman's." In private conversation—on all subjects but his one or two pets, for political discussion—he is a first-class talker, of intelligence and excellent education.

His very foes agree that his "darky stories" amount to a wonderful folk lore.

I have known persons who held him in horror, by reputation, after spending an evening with him in ignorance of his identity, express absolute incredulity on being told that so fascinating an entertainer was Senator Heflin.

His fellow lawmakers make a break for the exits, almost in a panic, when Heflin gets up to make a speech in the senate.

His recent oft-repeated account of the so-called attempt to assassinate him at Brockton, Mass., con-

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A HEARTENING PROMISE—From the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same, my name shall be great among the Gentiles; and in every place where I shall be offered unto my name, and a pure offering: for my name shall be great among the heathen, saith the Lord of hosts.—Malachi 1:11.

JOB FOR 900,000 COLLEGE WOMEN

There are now 900,000 women in America whose mental caliber equals or surpasses that of the average college graduate—and there are jobs available for not more than 125,000 of them. Moreover, the number of intellectual women is constantly increasing while the jobs which interest them are decreasing in number.

Prof. Walter B. Pitkin of Columbia University presents these figures in the current issue of The North American Review after an intensive survey in which he has sought to determine the opportunities open to college graduates in all phases of business, the professions and arts.

"The intellectual woman's chance of finding work outside the home that will satisfy her superior mind is growing smaller every year, and not because of the antagonism of men but because such jobs are growing scarcer for every body," he asserts.

Women are invading business and the professions at a time when those fields are becoming so highly organized that fewer instead of more superior minds are necessary, and more and more jobs are being reduced to the routine of mechanical operations, says Professor Pitkin.

The new race of intellectually active women will never be content with the parasitical life of society women of the past, Prof. Pitkin believes. Consequently, its only recourse is to motherhood, which, he predicts, as civilization progresses will be regarded "as the greatest, as well as the hardest, of all the sciences." He doubts, however, that more than 100,000 of the 900,000 college-type women are physically fitted to bear and rear more than one or two children successfully.

The idea that women who are financially able should give themselves to politics and social reform before motherhood is derided by Prof. Pitkin. "Politics and social reform are ineffective while the world has so many low-grade people in it," says his North American Review article. "The best thing we can do is to breed more high-grade people to offset the inferior."

Your BROADWAY And Mine

By Walter Winchell

NEW YORK. — If you have followed the numerous excerpts on plays and players by flip reviewers in this corner, you will find a titter or two in the following list of sassy notes jotted down by those who found Shakespeare a bore. At dinner the other night, Frank J. Wilstach, who conducted a column long before he began serving Will Hayes, was reminiscing about Southern and Marlowe, Shakespearean opuses and critics. So engaging were his comments and reminiscences that they were swiped for your diversion. To hear Wilstach treat the plays of Shakespeare with dignity—which, of course, presupposes a certain degree of lovable sympathy—is prone to indulge in a few lively flashes of frivolity.

When the Amities of Criticism come to be written, the section devoted to Shakespeare will have many scintillating pages. It is commonly supposed to be difficult to "expose what is good"; but this does not apply to the Bard's plays. It is easy to belittle what is great. Shakespeare is a shining mark, and the actor who appears in one of his plays is an easy target to hit. So it is that when some critic goes to see one of the plays they become as flippant as a court coquette in an old comedy.

Voltaire wrote of "Hamlet" that it was "a coarse and barbarous piece, which would not be tolerated by the lowest rabble of France and Italy." Hardly an amenity, you will probably say. But if anybody thinks that Shakespeare has not been scourged even by fellow Englishmen, let him read the works of Thomas Rymer, John Dennis, Aaron Hill and John Gildon. The first of these was the most vindictive and likewise the more amusing. One of his pleasanties was to the following effect: "There is not a more busy understander nature better; not a pug in Barbary that his not a truer taste of things."

Forgetting the frolicsome Shakespearean performances of Bernard Shaw, it may as well be admitted that the Bard, even in our day, is no wand again placed on the end of a pike. Cecil Raleigh, a worthy dramatist, facetiously remarked at the O. P. Club dinner, London, March, 1903: "Beerbohm Tree has given London a most remarkable series of plays, with only an occasional regrettable lapse into Shakespeare." The inimitable Max Beerbohm once remarked: "You see, we think it was enough honor to have bred Shakespeare; we don't have to read him."

There is no play by Shakespeare that has been so much the occasion for mirth as "Hamlet." Late the play was presented by a company in Indiana. The paper next day said:

"Hamlet" was produced at the Opera House last night. It was worse than expected."

An Austin, Tex., newspaper, under the heading, Current News Items, printed the following: "Rainstorm in Galveston, lasting twenty-eight minutes. 'Hamlet' in Langtry, lasting ten minutes. 'Windstorm in Houston, two hours. 'Barnstormers, in 'Hamlet' at Austin, one night."

The late Henry Watterson of the Louisville Courier Journal once criticized a performance of "Hamlet." He wrote as follows: "Hamlet" at the Macaulay Opera House last night. My God! said the woodcock, and it flew away."

When the same company appeared at Atlanta, one of the papers said:

"Hamlet" at the Opera House last night. The scenery was fine and the orchestra played some appropriate airs."

A critic of Denver, reviewing a performance of the play, wrote: "Mr. Protius played 'Hamlet' at the Grand Opera House last night and played it hard till 12 o'clock."

An historic genius presented "Hamlet" at Cheyenne, when the critic rose in his might and remarked:

"The play 'Hamlet' was given at the Opera House last night. It has long been a question as to whether Bacon or Shakespeare was the author of the play. It can now be definitely ascertained. Let the graves of both men be opened. He who shall be found to have written 'Hamlet' is the one who wrote 'Hamlet.'"

CHARACTER BY CHEMISTRY

All sorts of curious improvements are predicted for mankind by members of the American Chemical Society, recently meeting. It is said the time may come when man won't have to build his own character but can depend on chemistry to do it. And if the chemists can discover what makes us stop growing, future generations may become a race of giants. Of course that would not be advisable as we would have to junk all our present furniture and other equipment. As to growing character by the chemistry and gland method that would take all the spiritual struggle out of life and leave us very much like the well-known worm.

CRUSADERS

Some men and women are born crusaders and some learn to crusade. Others are not born that way and never get that way. There is something, apparently, inherent, though perhaps it is acquired, in some human beings which gives them a never-resting urge to make people over, to reform them, to do something to change their ways. The old lines of Hazlitt—"you can not expect people to be other than they are"—apparently teach them nothing. This busy minority sometimes even succeeds in forcing laws and eventually relegate the laws to the sad limbo of dead-letterism. Whether the crusader has done anything to make a happier or a better world still remains a matter of doubt.

THE CHARM OF FRANKNESS

Frankness can give a person decided charm, if the frankness is about oneself. People who are excessively frank about the failings of their friends usually have little charm. People who are to frank about the alleged good qualities of their friends are not charming either. They are merely flatterers. And flattery in time makes on ill. But there are a few people who are frank about themselves. They are without pretense. If they have failed at something, they freely admit it. If they are not making a go of something that they used to be enthusiastic about, they come right out and say so in a natural manner. If they do things that are obviously wrong, they do not try to hide them. They do not try to conceal it. Such people—and they are very few—have charm. They are invariably liked by their fellows, and they deserve to be.

PRETENSE

Speaking of frankness, there is probably no commoner fault among us mortals than the fault of pretense. It is possible to develop a great proficiency in pretending to wealth and distinction which we do not possess, and in pretending to have accomplishments and qualities which we would like to have but for which we are not willing to pay the price.

PROPOSED SURVEY OF RECLAMATION PROJECTS OUTLINED

By DR. ELWOOD MEAD, Commissioner, Federal Bureau of Reclamation

(Elwood Mead was born at Patriot, Ind., Jan. 15, 1858. He is a graduate of Purdue university. He was a professor in the Colorado Agricultural college for several years, becoming affiliated with the U. S. Department of Agriculture in 1897. At the same time he was a member of the faculty of the University of California for nine years. From 1907 to 1915 he was chairman of the state rivers and water supply commission at Victoria, Australia, later returning to the University of California. Since 1924 he has been federal commissioner of reclamation. He has written several books and articles on irrigation.)

An economic survey designed to determine the status of federal reclamation projects will be undertaken this summer.

Plans for the survey, which will include investigation of certain projects where work has been completed, others where construction still is under way and certain private projects in financial distress have been approved by the secretary of the interior, Ray Lyman Wilbur.

There is general agreement that the engineering operations of the bureau of reclamation are well conceived and capably carried out, but we are still drifting with regard to the economic principles and policies which should govern our conclusions as to feasibility or final development of projects. Reclamation requires more than canals and reservoirs.

The qualifications of settlers, the kind of agriculture which should be followed, and in general, those factors which determine earning power and well-being and contentment of the people of the communities created are as important as the engineering factors.

The results on a majority of the federal reclamation projects fully justify the national policy. A great wealth in land has been created, farmers are prosperous, and the payments required under

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Treat your hands kindly, give them just a little consideration, and they will reward you beautifully by being hands that you and everyone who sees you can admire.

Don't let them grow red and roughened from neglect, or stained and "work-a-day" looking from careless use. Even workers' hands can be attractive if they are ever so simply protected.

If you are an athletic person or a busy housewife or a "just-as-busy" business lady, plan to keep a jar of hand cream or lotion in your club locker or kitchen or office and use it frequently, after washing or whenever your hands have been in water. And every bathroom, of course, should be equipped with hand lotion for all the family.

The housewife, in addition to this, may profitably keep a cut lemon convenient nearby to squeeze over her fingertips after grimy kitchen tasks. And if she can, she should work in gloves—rubber ones for when her hands are kept in water and old kid ones for cleaning.

A simple night treatment that will preserve the soft, smooth texture of the hands is taken as follows: Wash the hands thoroughly with a good, bland soap and water, using a soft nail brush on the nails and knuckles. Then dry carefully, pushing down the cuticle at the base of each nail with the towel. Next, smooth on a hand cream or the same rich nourishing cream you use for your face, if your hands are thin. Begin at the fingertips and smooth it over your hands as if it were a glove, working it toward the wrist and over the palm. Now massage the cream into the skin. Start at the knuckles at the base of the first finger and massage with a rotary movement. Slide to second joint and rotate, then to the third, massaging around in the same way. Now pinch the fingertips outward to make them taper. Repeat this for each finger. Last, wring the hands together to work the cream well into the palms and backs of hands.

Large, awkward hands offer a special problem, and require special treatment. Of course, little can be done to change their shape, for that depends upon the bony structure mainly. But you can reduce the fleshy contours and make the fingers slimmer.

Wash them with a good reducing soap, rubbing the cake vigorously over the moistened hands until they are covered with the foamy lather. Let it stay on for several minutes before washing off. Then pat in a reducing cream or jelly to further the reducing process.

Another reducing method is to soak the hands in a basin of warm water to which several teaspoonfuls of epsom salts have been added. Dry them carefully afterwards, and apply a good astringent. The use of an astringent is to be recommended with any reducing treatment, since it is important to tighten the loosened skin which the dissolved tissues leave.

Twice in recent months I have heard the Alabama's senate floor—both times by members of his own party.

The point is quite freely argued in the lobby. The verdict appears to be that the Heflin mentality is perfectly normal. As one critic expressed it during the senator's recital of the Brockton incident:

"Having hit on what he believes to be a popular theme with his selected audience, Tom doubtless has been climbing gradually to greater heights—but testing every foothold, as he clammers. It is safe to say he will stop the instant he senses political danger. He is not out of control for a minute."

Not many persons of this type can refer to him in anything but profane language, but a few are broadminded enough to admit that the Alabama can be one of the most charming companions imaginable—under favorable circumstances—if only, of course, his vis-a-vis is able to forget, for the time, that it is Tom Heflin he is associating with.

The senator's attractive side is his social side.

Originally Heflin appears to have been an amiable man. Unofficially he is affable and accommodating still. From the senate floor he hurries every vituperative term in the dictionary at the occupants of the press gallery, but in his personal capacity, between sessions, he will go to all sorts of trouble to do any one of them a favor.

His society manners are an elegant "southern gentleman's." In private conversation—on all subjects but his one or two pets, for political discussion—he is a first-class talker, of intelligence and excellent education.

His very foes agree that his "darky stories" amount to a wonderful folk lore.

I have known persons who held him in horror, by reputation, after spending an evening with him in absolute incredulity on being told that so fascinating an entertainer was Senator Heflin.

Continually interrupted the solo farm relief debate, which they were eager to expedite. Rage and disgust marked their features as they streamed from the chamber whenever he gained the floor, delaying proceedings by hours.

Including his own, the Alabamian did muster 14 votes out of 96 in favor of his resolution reproaching the Brocktonians for the beer bottle which he asserted was hurled at him while speaking in their midst, but even those who gave him their ballots refused to remain in their seats to hear his oratory. Seldom had he as many as half a dozen senatorial listeners; frequently as few as three or four.

As the senate floor cleared, however, the galleries filled.

Heflin evidently cared nothing whatever how much he annoyed his colleagues; he still had an audience.

It obviously was to the gallery crowd and the country at large, through the stenographic report and the newspapers, that he was addressing himself. The senators' flight from the sound of his voice would have been too humiliating for endurance if the Alabama legislator had been in the least interested in their opinion concerning him.

MENU HINT

Veal Loaf
Creamed New Potatoes
Radishes
Buttered Asparagus
Lettuce with French Dressing
Pineapple Snowballs
Walnut Wafers
Coffee

The menu suggested for today may well be a "company" one, and could easily serve for a complimentary dinner for a prospective bride and groom or even for a home prepared bridal "breakfast." In either case I would add a fresh fruit cup or simple bouillon—chilled, if the day is warm—as a first course. Fresh pineapple, with orange and strawberries make an excellent fruit cup. Of course you may prefer the tiny toasted sandwiches, called canapés, instead.

Today's Recipes

Veal Loaf—Three and one-half pounds lean veal, one-fourth pound salt pork, one-half pound ham, small bit of onion, six large sifted crackers or two cups bread crumbs, two eggs, nutmeg, one tablespoon butter, melted; one tablespoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper. Chop veal, pork and ham fine, add the other ingredients and mix with the hand very thoroughly; mold it in a narrow loaf, spread bread crumbs over top with bit of butter, set pan in which loaf is put into another covered pan containing water. Let it steam in oven three hours.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"We read frequently that old age is the age of tolerance. . . ."

Old people have been through the mill and know what kindness means. But if parents don't cause more annoyance and real trouble in their middle-aged children's lives than anything else, I miss my guess entirely."

This is an excerpt from a letter from a woman whose best woman friend is being made a nervous wreck by her father and her husband's mother. Neither of the old people live with the younger couple now. The wife had an auto accident and is not strong, so the nagging of the two old people is doubly wearing on her. Can I advise them?

You do occasionally see old people who seem to have missed the sweetness and tolerance that should go with old age, and who make friends of their families wish that the suggestion of a famous doctor made some years ago, that people of 60 should be chloroformed, could be carried out. Such people certainly are a problem. You can't get away from them, because they need "looking after." You can't chastise them as you would little children, although they are as childish as little children.

I guess they simply have to be endured with as good grace as possible until their time comes to "pass on."

If old people have good health they can keep sweet and happy by keeping busy. Most of them do that. It is those in ill health who cannot be active and have therefore lost interest in life who are irritable and faultfinding. We must simply bear with them, realizing that they are to be pitied, and excusing their peevishness on the score of age.

MABEL B.: The above must be all the answer I can give to your question concerning your friend, unless the old people are amply able to care for themselves or to have someone to look after them. In that case, if your friend and her husband could get away to another town it would solve the problem. Your friend should strive to recover her health, as she is, of course, and keep busy with friends, books and other interests so that her mind does not dwell unduly on the annoyance. A tolerant laugh and "Oh, well, they're old and cranky and must be excused" will keep the unkindness from sinking in too far.

"Dear Virginia Lee: It may seem foolish for the mother of two children to write for advice, but, nevertheless, I want to know what you would do in a case like mine. My eldest daughter is 17 years old. Last year she met and fell deeply in love with a very nice young fellow. He loves her as much in return. He is 20 years of age. About two weeks ago he asked her father for his consent to their marriage. My husband, being a good, kind-hearted man, but stubborn, refused to give his consent until she is 18 years of age. I understand both of them, as I was only 16 and my husband when we were married. I asked him how he would have felt if we had been refused? He says he would have married me anyhow. Now, Virginia Lee, my daughter and the boy went to another town and were married. When they came home (the same day) my husband was furious. The children love each other and are happy. They say the only thing that keeps them from being happy is the way dad acts toward them. My question is, what would you have said and done when the children came home if you had been in my place and in my husband's place? He threatens to have the marriage annulled. What should we do? Must we let them go on their honeymoon or keep them apart? I will be anxious to hear from you.

"WORRIED MOTHER."

The only sensible thing to do now is to pack the young people off on their honeymoon and, when they come back, help them to set up housekeeping. Your husband's fury was the perfectly natural gesture of authority set aside and outraged dignity expected of the fond dad whose daughter elopes. And it was provoking to think of them slipping off and getting married when he was reasonable enough to suggest they wait until daughter was 18. But in view of family history, I don't see how he can be very severe, and my impression is that if daughter prostrates herself properly before him and shows him that his actions are breaking her heart, he will succumb as most fathers do when charming young daughters wheedle them. I hope so, anyway. We can't always control our children, and the only thing we can do is to stand by and love and encourage them when they are rash and do as we forbid, isn't it? They are the ones who suffer most from their actions.

Peter's Adventures

BY MRS. FLORENCE SAITH VINCENT

WHO'S AFRAID? POOR PETER!

It was growing so dark that the Loons decided to stop racing. They were separating, each going about his own business of the evening. Peter could hear them calling to each other as they floated about on the water or went for a fly in the dusk—perhaps in search of feeding grounds where there were not so many birds. And their voices, which while it was still light had made him laugh, now made him feel as mournful and sad as could be.

Friendly as he had shown himself, of course Larry the Loon had forgotten all about the boy by now and was thinking of nothing except the fine fish he expected to catch.

That was the worst of all birds—twas out of sight, out of mind with them! What was the matter with the Wild Geese? Were they going to fly away and leave him?

Certainly the Wild Geese were acting in a strange manner. With heads close together they were holding a confab of some sort and the boy caught a word here and there when one spoke louder than another.

"Now?" "Good wind." "In the darkness." "Feeling strong." "Far away."

It was just as Peter feared. The Geese were planning to leave. Where were they going? He must find out.

"Gander! Oh, Wild Gander!" cried Peter in a loud voice, to be sure the fellow heard him. "Please don't forget me, will you? I should be frightened to death if you went away and left me alone on the shores of The Lake, with these Voices of the Night. Loons in the darkness don't seem half so jolly as they do in the daylight. I wouldn't know where to go nor what to do."

Wild Gander was a kind-hearted bird. He left the Geese and came hurrying to the boy's side. "You poor little Two-Legs," said he, patting Peter with a comforting claw. "What a selfish lot we were to shut you out of the conversation. We didn't mean to, though; it was just because we didn't think."

"Of course we are not going to leave you here alone with only the Voices of the Night, for that is all that the Loons will be—even to their best friends—from now until the day dawns. In the dusk Loons seem to love the sound of their own cries better than anything else in the world and I do believe one of the reasons they scatter is that they shall have a chance to yell at each other as loud as they can. We Geese brought you to Loon Lake, didn't we? Of course, and we are going to take you away, boy! Get any other idea out of your head right this very minute."

HARNESS CIGARS BEAT LANGS WITH RALLY IN NINTH INNING

Displaying their customary knack of making a garrison finish, the champion Harness Cigars unworked a ninth-inning rally to defeat the hitherto unbeaten Lang Chevrolet Co., nine, 11 to 10 in an exciting National Softball League game Thursday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field before a huge crowd.

The victory was the third straight for Harness and enabled the city champions to gain undisputed possession of first place.

When the ninth inning rolled around, the contending teams were deadlocked in a 9 to 9 tie. Singles by Paul Boxwell, Smith and E. Randall, coupled with some fine base running, produced two runs for Harness in the first of the ninth. Langs made a desperate effort to overhaul the champions in the last of the ninth, but could score only one run. The tying run was on first when the last out was made.

Cutler, of Ohio State, imported pitcher from Dayton, started on the mound for Harness but was hit freely. Paul Boxwell, regular Harness pitcher last season, relieved him in the sixth and pitched a masterful game, holding Langs to one hit and one run in the last four rounds.

Harness fought an uphill battle all the way but outlasted Langs, fifteen blows to eleven. Ernest Randall led Harness at bat with four hits in five times at bat. Neville, Langs hurler, faced out three singles.

Both Smittle, Lang second baseman, and Yeakley, Harness right fielder, hit home runs.

The Downtown Country Club and the Lang Chevrolet Co. are scheduled to meet Friday night in a postponed game to decide possession of second place. Lineup:

University Trustee Sees No Compromise With Irate Students

By BONITA WITT
CLEVELAND, O., May 24.—Today the University of Des Moines, at Des Moines, Ia., stands clearly defined as the stronghold of fundamentalism as opposed to the liberal inclined institutions of higher learning in the United States, according to Edward A. Roberts, of Cleveland, a trustee and chairman of the committee which is carrying on the election of a new president.

Student riots which followed the dismissal of the entire faculty and President Harry Wayman have brought to a head the university's attempts to stamp out modernism in the faculty and make Des Moines a university to which parents may send their children "without fear that their faith will be undermined" according to the school catalog.

Modernist Faculty
"When the Baptist Bible Union took over the university, two years ago, the instructors were questioned, concerning their religious views, and apparently some subscribed to the tenets of the new regime merely to hold their jobs, not because they believed in them," Roberts continued. "Consequently, we recently decided to retire the entire faculty and President Wayman, giving them the opportunity to apply for reinstatement in June."

"There has been friction between the students and Dr. Shields since he decided to abolish the fraternities, and Miss Rehman, who was practically in complete charge of the university affairs until the advent of Dr. Wayman, has also been the target of their attacks."

Officials Vindicated
"We have absolute confidence in Dr. Shields and Miss Rehman, and investigation has proved insinuations regarding their alleged personal indiscretions absolutely false."

"When it became apparent that the situation was intolerable, following the attempted attacks upon Dr. Shields and the trustees, and the hurling of eggs and stench bombs, it was decided to close the university until such time as we could again meet to decide whether or not the Baptist Bible Union would continue to operate the institution. We are wholeheartedly fundamental in our views and we will not compromise with the students who demand the ousting of Dr. Shields and Miss Rehman and the re-installation of the faculty and Dr. Wayman."

Education by Injunction
Despite the decision of trustees to close the university, classes were resumed after a district judge granted an injunction to restrain the authorities from locking the doors.

Students, reluctant to lose their semester credits, appealed to the courts to reopen the university and classes were resumed without a day's interruption by order of Judge O. S. Shankland.

Des Moines residents expressed the opinion that it would be extremely difficult for Dr. Shields to return to the university to administer its affairs because of prevalent feeling against him.

When Dr. Shields learned that the school was operating under injunction he declared the students would not be given credit for their work and that the faculty would not be paid for teaching.

HARNESS CIGARS BEAT LANGS WITH RALLY IN NINTH INNING

Displaying their customary knack of making a garrison finish, the champion Harness Cigars unhooked a ninth-inning rally to defeat the hitherto unbeaten Lang Chevrolet Co. nine, 11 to 10 in an exciting National Softball League game Thursday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field before a huge crowd.

The victory was the third straight for Harness and enabled the city champions to gain undisputed possession of first place.

When the ninth inning rolled around, the contending teams were deadlocked in a 9 to 9 tie. Singles by Paul Boxwell, Smith and E. Randall, coupled with some fine base running, produced two runs for Harness in the first of the ninth. Langs made a desperate effort to overhaul the champions in the last of the ninth, but could score only one run. The tying run was on first when the last out was made.

Cutler, of Ohio State, imported pitcher from Dayton, started on the mound for Harness but was hit freely. Paul Boxwell, regular Harness pitcher last season, relieved him in the sixth and pitched a masterful game, holding Langs to one hit and one run in the last four rounds.

Harness fought an uphill battle all the way but outlasted Langs, fifteen blows to eleven. Ernest Randall led Harness at bat with four hits in five times at bat. Neville, Langs' hurler, faced out three singles.

Both Smittle, Lang second baseman, and Yeakley, Harness right fielder, hit home runs.

The Downtown Country Club and the Lang Chevrolet Co. are scheduled to meet Friday night in a postponed game to decide possession of second place. Lineup:

You pay for KELLYS— why not have KELLYS?

SOME people buy "mail order" tires under the impression that they are saving money. Others buy Kelly Springfield tires—and don't have to pay any more for them.

Contrary to general belief, Kelly Springfield tires are not high-priced. Their reputation has given many people the idea that because Kellys are so good they must cost more.

If you'll drop in and see us the next time you are in the neighborhood, we believe you'll be surprised to learn how Kelly prices run.

Besides, we can make you a trade-in allowance on your present tires—and put the new ones on for you.

When you can buy the best for the same price, why be content with less?

SUSPECT IS CAUGHT AFTER LONG SEARCH AND RETURNED HERE

Samuel Guenther, 30, for whom authorities have been searching for more than six months, pleaded not guilty to a charge of burglary and larceny and was bound over to the grand jury under $1,000 bond by J. P. MacEwan, Xenia Twp. Justice of the peace, Thursday. He was remanded to the County Jail in default of bond.

Guenther was taken into custody by the Montgomery County sheriff's office in Dayton Wednesday and turned over to Sheriff Ohmer Tate and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman.

Guenther and a companion, authorities recall, were surprised by Charles Thomas, farmer, Wilmington Pike, last fall while preparing to drive away after breaking into a chicken house on the farm and stealing some chickens.

Thomas had started out on a hunting trip about midnight and stumbled over a sack in the darkness while crossing a field. He found the sack contained chickens so he borrowed a shotgun and investigated.

He came upon Guenther and Turley Glaze seated in an auto and while he covered Glaze with the shotgun, Guenther is said to have jumped out of the machine and escaped.

Glaze was subsequently indicted for burglary and larceny, was finally permitted to plead guilty to petit larceny and served a workhouse sentence.

Since then, Guenther, his companion, successfully eluded arrest, officers said.

Both had been engaged by Thomas as farm hands to husk corn on the farm.

PICTURES OF "OLD IRONSIDES" GIVEN TO XENIA SCHOOLS

Framed pictures of "Old Ironsides", the U. S. Frigate "Constitution," were presented to six school buildings in the city this week, Central High School, McKinley, Spring Hill, Orient Hill, St. Bridg Parochial and Lincoln, by Catherine Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The pictures are copies of the famous painting of "Old Ironsides" made by the well known artist Gordon Grant. The purchase of these prints by the patriotic organizations over the country and the sale of relics from the old ship helped to raise the necessary funds to re-condition this historic frigate, and thus save it for posterity. History teachers and pupils will be interested in this addition to the schools.

The pictures were presented to the principals of the different buildings by a committee from Catherine Greene Chapter of which Mrs. S. O. Hale was chairman.

MERCHANTS FAVOR WATER SOFTENING PLANT FOR XENIA

Installation of a water softening plant at the Xenia water works is favored by the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, Harold M. Owens, representative of the association, reported to City Commission Thursday night.

If such a plant is installed, all water delivered in Xenia would be soft instead of hard.

City Auditor T. H. Zell, superintendent of the municipal plant, said the city is investigating the project and that it might possibly be accomplished within the next year, although he pointed out that the cost of installation, estimated not to exceed $20,000, must be paid out of the revenue of water, which might mean a slight increase in rates.

Troy, it is said, has issued bonds for twice that figure for a similar installation in that city, but it is believed some unusual conditions prevail there which would make the expense greater.

Other cities having such plants include Columbus and Bellefontaine. Xenia merchants, who went on record as favoring the plan, claim that such a plant would save Xenians thousands of dollars every year and that besides it would promote the general health.

The purity of the water would be enhanced and the necessity for residential water softening plants would be eliminated.

Washes woollens and blankets!

WHEN you wash with hard water there's a dirty ring around the edge of the basin, but that's not suds. It's scum. The hard water is doing that. It's mixing with the soap to form a dirty curdle. Can't wash woollens and blankets in that water.

Soften the water with Melo. Then add soap. The water is now a very fine cleansing agent and the soap is much more effective. Melo did that. Get a can today at your grocer's.

YEARS, many parti-colored years,

Some have crept on, and some have flown

Since first before me fell those tears

USE THIS SPECIAL CLEANING PRODUCT

GREAT HOSPITALS RECOMMEND

Avoid "pot-and-pan" cleansers when cleaning paint and enamel. No excuse for damage now

You may think it is hard to keep your painted woodwork and doors clean, especially if you have children. But a hospital has hundreds of white porcelain beds, white doors, walls and woodwork to keep immaculate. They are constantly finger-marked and smudged. "Pot-and-pan" cleansers scratch and remove the paint because of the harsh abrasives and caustic soda they contain. Repainting is costly. That is why most every hospital in America uses Wyandot exclusively for enamel and porcelain—and has for years.

Wyandot contains no harsh abrasives or caustic soda. In a recent test, a glossy white door, smudged each time with dirt, was wiped clean 143 times with Wyandot and a damp sponge before the slightest wear showed, even under a microscope. Now Wyandot is sold in package form at every grocery. Only 15c a can. Guaranteed.

The purity of the water would be enhanced and the necessity for residential water softening plants would be eliminated.

Washes woollens and blankets!

WHEN you wash with hard water there's a dirty ring around the edge of the basin, but that's not suds. It's scum. The hard water is doing that. It's mixing with the soap to form a dirty curdle. Can't wash woollens and blankets in that water.

Soften the water with MELO. Then add soap. The water is now a very fine cleansing agent and the soap is much more effective. MELO did that. Get a can today at your grocer's.

The Church Invites You

MARCHING ORDERS
General Foch gave direction to the allied armies as to positions, relations and objectives. It is generally conceded that this was the prime reason for the victory in the World War.

There are moral and spiritual enemies in an advancing host, threatening the moral and spiritual downfall of mankind. Christ is the religious commander, directing the allied religious forces as to moral and spiritual positions, relations and objectives.

Nationalism and denominationalism are lost in the purpose of winning an important victory. The church is an organized force to quell these moral and spiritual enemies which we all face. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

The conflict of opinion in Judah as to the best policy to pursue caused Jeremiah to become very unpopular. Some urged the king to unite with surrounding nations in a league against Babylon to whom he was subject. It was the belief of many that in Egypt lay the only hope. Against these proposals Jeremiah strongly protested. He declared there was no safety except in rendering obedience to Babylon. Later results showed him to be right.

V. 4 "Then the princes said to the king, let this man, we pray thee, be put to death; for as much as he weakeneth the hands of the men of war that remain in this city, and the hands of all the people, in speaking such words unto them." Babylon was not besieged Jerusalem and possibly as a result of Jeremiah's advice many had surrendered to the Babylonian army which would weaken both the courage and the fighting force. The leaders thought the cure was the killing of Jeremiah. The truth tell may be killed but the truth cannot be killed.

V. 5 "And Zeneiah, the king, said, 'behold, he is in your hand.' This showed the weakness of the king." Responsibility can not be shifted so easily.

V. 6 "Then took they Jeremiah, and cast him into the dungeon of Malchijah, the king's son." This was a plan to kill the prophet without being called murderers. Hate always finds a way to excuse itself.

Vs. 7, 8, 9, "Now when Ebedmelech, the Ethiopian, a eunuch, who was in the king's house, heard that they had put Jeremiah in the dungeon, he spake to the king, saying, 'my lord the king, these men have done evil in all that they have done to Jeremiah, the prophet, whom they have cast into the dungeon; and he is like to die in the place where he is because of the famine.' A negro slave who was brave and true became an emancipator. He pointed out sin in saying, "these men have done evil". It always pays to point out sin when it ruins and destroys life. The prophet would hail him as a brother. Color makes no difference in God's brotherhood of man.

V. 10 "Then the king commanded Ebedmelech, the Ethiopian, saying, take from thence thirty men with thee, and take up Jeremiah, the prophet, out of the dungeon before he die." Truth rightly spoken commands kings. There are unseen hands many times that are ready to lift us when we are down for a good cause.

Vs. 11, 12 "So Ebedmelech took the men with him and went into the house of the king and took thence rags and worn out garments and let them down by cords into the dungeon to Jeremiah and he said to Jeremiah, put now these rags and worn-out garments under thine armholes under the cords. And Jeremiah did so." This colored man would lift the prophet without pain. Such little things are a deep revelation of character.

V. 13 "So they drew up Jeremiah with the cords, and took him out of the dungeon; and Jeremiah remained in the court of the guard." The prophet being delivered now declared God's messages anew to the king without fear. To be true to God was more important than life itself.

Discussion Questions S.S. Lesson

1. Why was Jeremiah's message not heeded?

2. Why did Jeremiah's enemies not put him to death?

3. What really is a persecution? What should we do when persecuted?

4. Why and when is a good man shunned?

5. Against whom is persecution most bitter today? Why?

6. What can we do to stop cruelty in the world?

7. How can we secure a greater justice to the Negro?

8. Name other ways by which we can make common deeds beautiful.

Clericus says, "If any word of God ever returned to him void, it was that spoken by Jeremiah. Did the prophet then fail? No herald of the truth ever fails, no matter what is done with him and his message at the time. His comfort was in the fact that God was using him and was pleased with him."

LESSON PRAYER

"Help us to pay the price when duty calls us to speak the truth; give us such courage as to cause us to stand alone if necessary; give us grace and strength to suffer persecution that the will of God may be known and obeyed."

BOOK REVIEW

"Unravelling the Book of Books" by Tratner, Charles Scribner's Sons tells the story of the rise of scientific Bible thought, explaining how the puzzles of the Bible were solved and its documents unraveled.

"To Whom It May Concern," by Charles Wager, Robert O. Law Co., Chicago, contains a series of essays and verse on numerous subjects which Mr. Wager contributed at various times to Oberlin Alumni Magazine.

The total Catholic population of the United States is 20,112,758 according to the official directory just published. This is a gain of 423,709, over the previous year. $1,367,775.29 was the total of receipts of Catholic charities during that period.

Anton Lang, the only man to play the part of Christ in the three Oberammergau Passion Plays and proclaimed by many as the greatest "Christus" in this history of centuries old spectacle, will resign his role to another in the 1930 production.

THE BETTER WAY

A New Barrier Against War
On Memorial Day last year, the president of the United States said the field of Gettysburg, near the close of his address: "We have gathered to pay tribute to our soldier dead. This day is consecrated to their memory. It seems to me that the greatest honor that we can do to those who died on the field of battle that this Republic might live is soberly to pledge ourselves to bend our every effort to prevent any recurrence of war."
The peace of the world cannot, of course, be obtained by any one single act, but every treaty of arbitration and conciliation and every agreement against resorting to war adds another barrier against those conflicts which from time to time have recurred in the history of nations, and it is the hope of mankind that these repeated steps may in time establish a mode of thought and a custom of action that will do much to prevent war."

Home Education
The Wisdom of Robert E. Lee
Although Robert E. Lee owes most of his fame to his military exploits, he was known among his friends and family as a keen thinker and a clear forceful writer, one who expressed his thoughts with precision and aptness. This ability is well illustrated by the advice which he gave to his son, which we find in the following remarks:
Never do a wrong to make a friend or keep one.
Deal kindly, but firmly, with all your classmates; you will find it the policy which will wear.
Above all, do not appear to other people that you are not.

READ ESTATE GOES TO OHIO WESLEYAN

Estate of the late Charles J. Read, a native of Greene County, has a property valuation of $161,231.44, including $159,231.84 in securities and stocks, according to an inventory and appraisal filed in the Montgomery County Probate Court. Seventy-five shares of Southwestern Portland Cement Co., preferred, valued at $100 a share, and $13,500 in paid up stock in the Fidelity Building and Loan Association, are included in the stocks. There are ninety stocks listed.

The will of Mr. Read was probated in Dayton some time ago. It left almost the entire estate to Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware, the income from which may be loaned to students for paying their expenses of tuition and board. Repayment of such sums loaned is within the discretion of the trustees, the will provides.

World Religious News

One of the largest bells in the world has been cast in England for the chiming of the Riverside church in New York City. It weighs nineteen tons.

The 800 Protestant churches in the Chicago Church Federation representing a moral power in the city parallel to none, are launching a campaign against the city's crime and vice. "Civic Decency" is the slogan of the campaign and it will be headed by Dean Shailer Matthews of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago and president of the city church federation.

MARCHING ORDERS

General Foch gave direction to the allied armies as to positions, relations and objectives. It is generally conceded that this was the prime reason for the victory in the World War.

There are moral and spiritual enemies in an advancing host, threatening the moral and spiritual downfall of mankind. Christ is the religious commander, directing the allied religious forces as to moral and spiritual positions, relations and objectives.

Nationalism and denominationalism are lost in the purpose of winning an important victory. The church is an organized force to quell these moral and spiritual enemies which we all face. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

The conflict of opinion in Judah as to the best policy to pursue caused Jeremiah to become very unpopular. Some urged the king to unite with surrounding nations in a league against Babylon to whom he was subject. It was the belief of many that in Egypt lay the only hope. Against these proposals Jeremiah strongly protested. He declared there was no safety except in rendering obedience to Babylon. Later results showed him to be right.

V. 4 "Then the princes said to the king, let this man, we pray thee, be put to death; for as much as he weakeneth the hands of the men of war that remain in this city, and the hands of all the people, in speaking such words unto them." Babylon was not besieging Jerusalem and possibly as a result of Jeremiah's advice many had surrendered to the Babylonian army which would weaken both the courage and the fighting force. The leaders thought the cure was the killing of Jeremiah. The truth tell may be killed but the truth cannot be killed.

V. 5 "And Zedekiah, the king, said, 'Behold, he is in your hand.'" This showed the weakness of the king. Responsibility can not be shifted so easily.

V. 6 "Then took they Jeremiah, and cast him into the dungeon of Malchijah, the king's son." This was a plan to kill the prophet without being called murderers. Hate always finds a way to excuse itself.

Vs. 7, 8, 9, "Now when Ebedmelech, the Ethiopian, a eunuch, who was in the king's house, heard that they had put Jeremiah in the dungeon, he spake to the king, saying, 'My lord the king, these men have done evil in all that they have done to Jeremiah, the prophet, whom they have cast into the dungeon; and he is like to die in the place where he is because of the famine.' A negro slave who was brave and true became an emancipator. He pointed out sin in saying, 'these men have done evil.' It always pays to point out sin when it ruins and destroys life. The prophet would hail him as a brother. Color makes no difference in God's brotherhood of man.

V. 10 "Then the king commanded Ebedmelech, the Ethiopian, saying, take from thence thirty men with thee, and take up Jeremiah, the prophet out of the dungeon before he die." Truth rightly spoken commands kings. There are unseemly hands many times that are ready to lift us when we are down for a good cause.

Vs. 11, 12 "So Ebedmelech took the men with him and went into the house of the king and took thence rags and worn out garments and let them down by cords into the dungeon to Jeremiah and he said to Jeremiah, put now these rags and worn-out garments under the cords. And Jeremiah did so." This colored man would lift the prophet without pain. Such little things are a deep revelation of character.

V. 13 "So they drew up Jeremiah with the cords, and took him out of the dungeon; and Jeremiah remained in the court of the guard." The prophet being delivered now declared God's messages anew to the king without fear. To be true to God was more important than life itself.

Discussion Questions on S.S. Lesson

1. Why was Jeremiah's message not heeded?
2. Why did Jeremiah's enemies not put him to death?
3. What really is a persecution? What should we do when persecuted?
4. Why and when is a good man shunned?
5. Against whom is persecution most bitter today? Why?
6. What can we do to stop cruelty in the world?
7. How can we secure a greater justice to the Negro?
8. Name other ways by which we can make common deeds beautiful.

Clericus says, "If any word of God ever spoken to him void, it was that returned by Jeremiah. Did the prophet then fail? No herald of the truth ever fails. No matter what is done with him and his message at the time. His comfort was in the fact that God was using him and was pleased with him."

LESSON PRAYER
"Help us to pay the price when duty calls us to speak the truth; give us such courage as to cause us to stand alone if necessary; give us grace and strength to suffer persecution that the will of God may be known and obeyed."

WHAT ARE THE DIFFERENT METHODS THAT MAY BE USED IN TEACHING IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL?

The story telling method is best adapted to little children; hand work and the use of art in pictures and in song is also a splendid method for the younger children; presenting religious truths in Bible plays and pageantry is now used with telling effect; the topical method appeals to the high school age, allowing a place for research and study; the lecture method is used in many adult classes; the old-time question and answer method is good for review purposes; the stereopticon and moving picture may be used with good effect in the Sunday school lesson; the project method, that of carrying out a program illustrating a great truth, is one of the modern methods of teaching. A good teacher will combine different methods, using what is best adapted to the group being taught.

The Wisdom of Robert E. Lee
Although Robert E. Lee owes most of his fame to his military exploits, he was known among his friends and family as a keen thinker and a clear forceful writer, one who expressed his thoughts with precision and aptness. This ability is well illustrated by the advice which he gave to his son, which we find in the following remarks:
"Frankness is the child of honesty and courage.
Never do a wrong to make a friend or keep one.
Deal kindly, but firmly, with all your classmates; you will find it the policy which will wear.
Above all, do not appear to others before he die." Truth rightly

THE BETTER WAY

A New Barrier Against War

On Memorial Day last year, the president of the United States said at the field of Gettysburg, near the close of his address: "We have gathered to pay tribute to our soldier dead. This day is consecrated to their memory. It seems to me that the greatest honor that we can do to those who died on the field of battle that this Republic might live is soberly to pledge ourselves to bend our every effort to prevent any recurrence of war. . . . The peace of the world cannot, of course, be obtained by any one single act, but every treaty of arbitration and conciliation and every agreement against resorting to war adds another barrier against those conflicts which from time to time have recurred in the history of nations, and it is the hope of mankind that these repeated steps may in time establish a mode of thought and a custom of action that will do much to prevent war."

ELIMINATION OF POLES FROM BUSINESS DISTRICT PLANNED

City Commission, with the co-operation of the various private utilities, is attempting to work out a solution of the complicated problem of eliminating the intricate system of poles which is considered an eyesore in the business district of the city.

It is proposed to eliminate poles within the area from Third to Church Sts. and Monroe to Gallo-way Sts.

Representatives of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Dayton Power and Light Co., the Western Union Telegraph Co., the Postal Telegraph Co. and the Dayton-Xenia Railway Co. were present at the commission meeting Thursday night when the project was discussed.

All of the utilities expressed themselves as willing to co-operate in the matter and it was the consensus of opinion that a joint proposition could be worked out, satisfactory to both the city and the utilities.

The utility representatives plan to hold a preliminary meeting June 4 and get together on a suitable plan which will be submitted at the second commission meeting in June.

The project would entail the moving of about fifty poles within the area.

It is the belief of the commission that an underground conduit system might be installed as has been the case in other cities. Under such a system, the various utilities would rent space in the conduit for their cables.

The problem faced by the utilities is how to obtain right of way from private interests and also to decide upon a method to properly serve property owners.

Commission is anxious for the abatement of the nuisance for several reasons. The poles are holding up installation of new traffic signals at the three principal street intersections in the business section.

It is also hoped to eventually install a boulevard lighting system and this can not be accomplished until the maze of poles is eliminated.

COMMISSION MAY ISSUE BONDS TO PURCHASE SITE FOR ARMORY

City Commission may authorize a small bond issue, the proceeds of which would be used to finance purchase of a site for the location of Xenia's new $50,000 state National Guard armory.

That the money should be raised by taxation instead of solicitation was the consensus of opinion of a group of representatives of various Xenia business and civic organizations who attended the commission meeting Thursday night.

City Solicitor J. A. Finney's opinion is that a bond issue to pay for the site could legally be issued by the commission because it is for a public improvement.

Charles Adair, representing the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, reported that the business men were opposed to solicitation and favored taxation to raise the money for the reason that under the first method the burden would be on the business and professional men of the city.

This opinion was endorsed by Postmaster C. S. Frazier, spokesman for the Rotary Club, who declared that inasmuch as this is a public improvement, the public will receive the benefit of the money. "There is a certain percentage of the people that pay every time when any thing of this nature comes up and the people that should contribute, do not. It is therefore Rotary's request that bonds be issued to buy a site."

Taxation rather than solicitation is also favored by the Kiwanis Club, according to George Dodds, representative of this organization. Dodds told the commission that he favored general taxation because it would reach everybody and the cost to each taxpayer would in any event be almost negligible.

Statistics disclosed at the meeting indicated that a bond issue of about $4,000 could be spread over a period of ten years, an approximate average of $500 a year, including principal and interest, and that the average cost per year to each taxpayer would only be about five cents on each $1,000 property valuation.

The site for location of the armory which was officially approved by the adjutant-general is a triangular tract of land in the Dodds Addition adjacent to the Springfield branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad. It includes twelve lots and is the location preferred by the adjutant-general if complications do not arise in obtaining options on the lots.

Greatest Ambition of Cleveland Clinic Founder Shattered by Catastrophe

Above, general view of Cleveland clinic wrecked by fire following explosion of gas in X-ray department. Inset, Dr. George W. Crile, founder and head of institution.

Undergoes Blood Transfusion in Effort to Save Life of Assistant

ONLY the stark fire-scarred walls of the Cleveland building that Dr. George W. Crile, one of America's foremost medical men, had hoped would be his life monument, remain to attest to his crumbled hopes.

The crushed man, exhausted by his heroic rescue efforts and the blood transfusion he underwent to save the life of a friend injured in the explosion, has secluded himself in an attempt to gain rest until the investigation gets under way. Callers at his home were told that he was "beyond the reach of the press."

Dr. Crile was justly proud of the institution of which he was one of the co-founders. He had planned it as a model hospital and so far had its fame spread that people from all parts of the country came to its doors for relief. His humanitarian work and investigations into various fields of the medical profession have won for him a number of foreign decorations.

The doctor studied for his profession in this country and London, Paris and Vienna. He served his country during the World War, emerging from the army with the rank of brigadier-general of the Medical O. R. C. In 1921 he assisted in the founding of the Cleveland Clinic, and three years later helped to establish the Cleveland Clinic Hospital.

Dr. Crile was particularly noted in the East for his operations on women suffering from ailments of the thyroid glands. He had been unusually successful in correcting goiters. His text book, "The Thyroid Gland," published in 1922, explains for the first time a method of performing the operation so that no scar remains.

The founder and operator of the clinic was operating when the first blast rocked his institution. Through it all, with his fellow specialists injured, his young doctors and aides lying dead or dying about him, and with the physical evidence of his model medical ideal shattered, he fought on to save his survivors. Refusing to lose his head, Dr. Crile directed the rescue, ordered ambulances, emergency telephone lines, directed policemen and firemen in their battle against the flames and gas, and then calmly visited other hospitals to take a census of his friends and his patients who were swept away by the tragedy.

Learning that his protégé, Dr. Phillips, was seriously injured, Dr. Crile sped to Wade Park Manor and there underwent the blood transfusion mentioned above in an effort to save Phillips, but in vain. He was then ordered to bed when it was feared that the grief over the disaster, together with the physical and mental strain, might cause him to collapse.

Thus the ambitions and hopes of the admirable Dr. Crile have been rudely shattered. Broken in health and spirit since the disastrous accident that destroyed his clinic and took a toll of more than one hundred lives, he may yet revive the courage which first inspired him to begin his humanitarian work and perhaps start anew when the first shock of the disaster is over and he has regained his robust physique.

TWO INJURED WHEN AUTO HITS PEDESTRIAN AND STRIKES CAR

John Black, 21, Bellbrook, faces a hearing before Mayor Karl R. Babb next Tuesday morning on a charge of reckless driving as a result of an accident in which the car he was driving is alleged to have knocked down one person and caused the injury of another man when the machine crashed into a parked car in front of the M. A. Ross grocery, S. Detroit St., at 11:15 p. m. Thursday.

Fred Woosley, about 42, manager of the local plant of the Louisiana Oil Refining Co., Hill St., is in a serious condition at Espey Hospital with a lacerated scalp and fractured ribs and Raymond M. Smith, 24 Chestnut St., is recovering at his home from painful bruises.

Woosley was knocked down as he was crossing the west side of S. Detroit St. by Black's car, which had been driven off of E. Second St. and turned left on Detroit St. Then the car is said to have smashed into the rear of a coupe parked in front of the grocery. Smith was getting into the car at that instant and the impact is reported to have hurled him across the sidewalk against a building.

Woosley was picked up unconscious and rushed to the hospital by J. B. Rice and A. H. Finlay, where an X-ray was to be taken Friday to determine the extent of his injuries. It is believed that Smith, however, was not seriously hurt.

The youthful driver of the car was arrested by Patrolman George Robinson and was released under $100 bond Friday morning for appearance before Mayor Babb at 9 a. m. next Tuesday to answer to a reckless driving charge. Black was not hurt.

Police said they understand Black was racing with another machine driven by Richard Edgington, also of Bellbrook. Philip Black, no relation to John, was also an occupant of Edgington's car. Edgington has not been arrested but may be cited to appear in court for questioning with the possibility charges may also be filed against him for contributing to the accident.

STATE DRY AGENTS GET BURIED LIQUOR

Swooping down on the farm of Frank Bauer, 40, Shakertown Road, near Alpha, Thursday night, two state prohibition agents dug up nine half-pints and four pints of liquor which had been buried in the ground and arrested Bauer on a charge of possessing liquor.

The raid was conducted by Midland Davis and Ford Long, dry agents operating out of Dayton.

Bauer pleaded not guilty when arraigned in Probate Court Friday morning and he was remanded to the County Jail in default of $600 bond. His hearing has been assigned for 9 a. m. May 28.

FOUR GIVEN FINES AFTER ARREST HERE

Wilbur Honaker and Arthur Anderson, colored, this city, were each fined $25 and costs on charges of petit larceny and Helen Jones, Yellow Springs, and Margaret Stevens, this city, both colored, were each given suspended fines of $5 and costs on loitering charges by Mayor Karl R. Babb Friday morning. They pleaded guilty.

The quartet was locked up at Police Headquarters over night Wednesday following arrests made by Patrolmen Charles Thompson and Ed Craig, who reported they caught the boys stealing gasoline from a parked auto late Wednesday night.

J. W. HOYLE DIES FRIDAY IN CHICAGO

J. W. "Billy" Hoyle, 64, native of Xenia, died Friday morning at his home in Chicago, Ill., according to a telegram received here by John Fuerle.

Mr. Hoyle was the son of James Hoyle, a Xenia postmaster of pre-Civil War days. He left Xenia in the middle eighties, going to Columbus, where he was connected with the Bott Bros. Co.

He afterward managed a hotel in Cincinnati and then moved to Chicago, where he was connected with the Auditorium Hotel for a time. Still later he became owner of a tobacco shop on Wabash Ave., which he operated until a short time ago. He leaves his widow, but no children, David Fifer, Xenia, is a cousin and there are other distant relatives here.

Friends have not been advised whether the body would be brought here for burial in the Hoyle family lot in Woodland Cemetery.

TENTATIVE BUDGET FOR CITY PREPARED BY CITY MANAGER

A public hearing on the tentative 1930 budget for operating expenses of the city government will be held when the City Commission holds its next regular meeting in three weeks.

City Manager S. O. Hale is working on the budget and tax rate and expects to have it in shape for presentation at the next commission session.

Pointing out that if the city ends up the year 1929 with a balance on hand in the operating fund it will be by the "skin of its teeth" despite the closest economies, Manager Hale asserted more money will be needed next year for running expenses of government.

The City had requested a tax rate of $5.70 per $1,700 property valuation for this year, an amount which included operating expenses and for the municipal water works, but the County Budget Commission cut the rate to $4.90, slicing off 80 cents of the proposed rate. It failed to allow the usual $10,000 levied for the waterworks.

At the next commission meeting the interest and sinking fund trustees will also submit their budget for 1930.

ELIMINATION OF POLES FROM BUSINESS DISTRICT PLANNED

City Commission, with the cooperation of the various private utilities, is attempting to work out a solution of the complicated problem of eliminating the intricate system of poles which are considered an eyesore in the business district of the city.

It is proposed to eliminate poles within the area from Third to Church Sts. and Monroe to Gallows Sts.

Representatives of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Dayton Power and Light Co., the Western Union Telegraph Co., the Postal Telegraph Co. and the Dayton-Xenia Railway Co. were present at the commission meeting Thursday night when the project was discussed.

All of the utilities expressed themselves as willing to cooperate in the matter and it was the consensus of opinion that a joint proposition could be worked out, satisfactory to both the city and the utilities.

The utility representatives plan to hold a preliminary meeting June 4 and get together on a suitable plan which will be submitted at the second commission meeting in June.

The project would entail the moving of about fifty poles within the area.

It is the belief of the commission that an underground conduit system might be installed as has been the case in other cities. Under such a system, the various utilities would rent space in the conduit for their cables.

The problem faced by the utilities is how to obtain right of way from private interests and also to decide upon a method to properly serve property owners.

Commission is anxious for the abatement of the nuisance for several reasons. The poles are holding up installation of new traffic signals at the three principal street intersections in the business section.

It is also hoped to eventually install a boulevard lighting system and this can not be accomplished until the maze of poles is eliminated.

COMMISSION MAY ISSUE BONDS TO PURCHASE SITE FOR ARMORY

City Commission may authorize a small bond issue, the proceeds of which would be used to finance purchase of a site for the location of Xenia's new $50,000 state National Guard armory.

That the money should be raised by taxation instead of solicitation was the consensus of opinion of a group of representatives of various Xenia business and civic organizations who attended the commission meeting Thursday night.

City Solicitor J. A. Finney's opinion is that a bond issue to pay for the site could legally be issued by the commission because it is for a public improvement.

Charles Adair, representing the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, reported that the business men were opposed to solicitation and favored taxation to raise the money for the reason that under the first method the burden would be on the business and professional men of the city.

This opinion was endorsed by Postmaster C. S. Frazer, spokesman for the Rotary Club, who declared that inasmuch as this is a public improvement, the public will receive the benefit of the armory.

"There is a certain percentage of the people that pay every time when any thing of this nature comes along and the people that should contribute, do not. It is therefore Rotary's request that bonds be issued to buy a site."

Taxation rather than solicitation is also favored by the Kiwanis Club, according to George Dodds, representative of this organization.

Dodds told the commission that he favored general taxation because it would reach everybody and the cost to each taxpayer would in any event be almost negligible.

Statistics disclosed at the meeting indicated that a bond issue of about $4,000 could be spread over a period of ten years, an approximate average of $500 a year, including principal and interest, and that the average cost per year to each taxpayer would only be about five cents on each $1,000 property valuation.

The site for location of the armory which was officially approved by the adjutant-general is a triangular tract of land in the Dodds Addition adjacent to the Springfield branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad. It includes twelve lots and is the location preferred by the adjutant-general if complications do not arise in obtaining options on the lots.

Since officially selecting this site, however, Adjutant-General Arthur W. Reynolds has written a letter to City Auditor T. H. Zell in which he said that after re-consideration, he has decided to recommend two sites acceptable to him in the order of his preference.

The triangular site is his first choice but the adjutant-general said his second choice would be the seven lots on Edison Ave. in the new Dodds Addition in the rear of the County District Library. The site is therefore not definitely decided upon.

Commission tabled action on the request for a bond issue until a report is received on whether options have been obtained from all lot holders and what it will probably cost to buy a site and put it into condition so that it will be acceptable to the state.

Adjutant-General Reynolds is anxious that the gift of a site to the state be made as soon as possible in order that plans may be made and construction work on the building be begun.

WOMEN PREPARED TO SELL POPPIES HERE TO HONOR WAR DEAD

Women of Joseph P. Paddy Post, No. 95, unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, will conduct their annual sale of memorial poppies Saturday.

The purpose of the sale is to honor the memory of the World War dead through the general wearing of the poppy of Flanders Fields, the flower which grew on the desolated battlefields where they died and amid the crosses beneath which they were buried.

At the same time the sale raises annually a large fund for the care of the disabled and the dependents of the dead and disabled.

Opening at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, the sale will continue throughout the day and evening.

At 7 p. m. the O. S. and S. O. Home Cadet band will give a concert in front of the Court House, after which a public auction will be held to auction off a poppy to the highest bidder. The auction sale will be conducted by Jess Stanley, New Burlington auctioneer and a Legionnaire.

The poppy sale Saturday will be conducted by the American Legion and Auxiliary assisted by thirty-two other persons, including many grade pupils and high school girls.

The following persons will help in the sale: the Misses Helen Currie, Jean Marshall, Elizabeth Irwin, Doris McCormick, Frances Marshall, Betty Kingsbury, Dorothy Need, Margaret Need, Dorothy Devoe, Helen Spahr, Ruby Johnston, Eileen Sayre, Jane Harner, Mary Hayward, Mary Perrell, Anita Cherry, Virginia Guyton, Mary Nell Dunkel, Ruby Rice, Catherine Manzan, Dorothy Clemmer, Gladys Shadrach, Irene Robinson, Stella Tuhey and Mrs. Anna Williams. Mrs. Carl Cowan, Mrs. James Wilson III, Mrs. Owen Tiffney, and Guido Peserera, Robert Cline, Willard Bennington and Donald Chew.

Last year the sale of the little red flowers brought the Legion and Auxiliary in this country nearly $900,000 for their relief work among the war's victims. This year it is expected that the total will be more than $1,000,000. This money is divided among the 10,000 posts of the Legion and the 6,500 units of the auxiliary for their relief work among the disabled men in their communities and to it is added many hundreds of thousands more in money and materials from the other resources of these two great organizations.

"Konjola beats all the other medicines I ever heard of," said Mrs. Ann Snurr, 1211 Girard street, Toledo.

"For a long time I had no end of trouble with my stomach, and liver, until Konjola put an end to it. Everything I ate caused gas, and I was subject to belching spells. I was short of breath, my heart palpitated and I was subject to bilious attack, dizziness and nausea. My complexion was yellowish.

"I tried Konjola, and you can imagine my pleasure and surprise when I began to notice improvement almost from the start. My digestion was restored, and I can eat without unpleasant after effects. Gone is the gas—the bloating—the belching spells. My strength is rapidly coming back, now that I can eat a real meal and get proper rest at night. My liver is functioning perfectly, and my body has been cleansed of poisons and impurities. Konjola is wonderful."

Konjola is sold in Xenia at Gallahue drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Greatest Ambition of Cleveland Clinic Founder Shattered by Catastrophe

Above, general view of Cleveland clinic wrecked by fire following explosion of gas in X-ray department. Inset, Dr. George W. Crile, founder and head of fire following explosion of gas in X-ray department.

Undergoes Blood Transfusion in Effort to Save Life of Assistant

ONLY the stark fire-scarred walls of the Cleveland building that Dr. George W. Crile, one of America's foremost medical men, had hoped would be his life monument, remain to attest to his crumbled hopes.

The crushed man, exhausted by his heroic rescue efforts and the blood transfusion he underwent to save the life of a friend injured in the explosion, has secluded himself in an attempt to gain rest until the investigation gets under way. Callers at his home were told that he was "beyond the reach of the press."

Dr. Crile was justly proud of the institution of which he was one of the co-founders. He had planned it as a model hospital and so far had its fame spread that people from all parts of the country came to its doors for relief. His humanitarian work and investigations into various fields of the medical profession have won for him a number of foreign decorations.

The doctor studied for his profession in this country and London, Paris and Vienna. He served his country during the World War, emerging from the army with the rank of brigadier-general of the Medical O. R. C. In 1921 he assisted in the founding of the Cleveland Clinic, and three years later helped to establish the Cleveland Clinic Hospital.

Dr. Crile was particularly noted in the East for his operations on women suffering from ailments of the thyroid glands. He had been unusually successful in correcting goiters. His text book, "The Thyroid Gland," published in 1922, explains for the first time a method of performing the operation so that no scar remains.

The founder and operator of the clinic was operating when the first blast rocked his institution. Through it all, with his fellow specialists injured, his young doctors and aides lying dead or dying about him, and with the physical evidence of his model medical ideal shattered, he fought on to save his survivors.

Refusing to lose his head, Dr. Crile directed the rescue, ordered ambulances, emergency telephone lines, directed policemen and firemen in their battle against the flames and gas, and then calmly visited other hospitals to take a census of his friends and his patients who were swept away by the tragedy.

Learning that his protegee, Dr. Phillips, was seriously injured, Dr. Crile sped to Wade Park Manor and there underwent the blood transfusion mentioned above in an effort to save Phillips, but in vain. He was then ordered to bed when it was feared that the grief over the disaster, together with the physical and mental strain, might cause him to collapse.

Thus the ambitions and hopes of the admirable Dr. Crile have been rudely shattered. Broken in health and spirit since the disastrous accident that destroyed his clinic and took a toll of more than one hundred lives, he may yet revive the courage which first inspired him to begin his humanitarian work and perhaps start anew when the first shock of the disaster is over and he has regained his robust physique.

On grounds of wilful absence from home for more than three years, Ethel Ferguson has been granted a divorce from Lawrence Ferguson in Common Pleas Court and was also awarded custody of their minor child, Helen Louise. The matter of its support was referred to Juvenile Court for determination.

LAWRENCE EYLER, 17, son of Leroy D. Eyer, 240 Chestnut St., and a senior at Xenia Central High School, is looking around for four-leaf clovers, horse shoes and other good luck tokens.

Eyler had what he considers more than his share of misfortune while attending the annual picnic of his class at the Adair and Garfield summer cottages along the Little Miami River Wednesday.

To start off with the unfortunate student took an unscheduled bath in the river. Crossing the stream in a barge, the boat tilted and Eyler fell in.

He decided he would return home to change his clothes so he borrowed an auto from another student and started for Xenia. Then to make matters worse the car hit a stretch of fresh gravel on the Fairground Road and skidded off the pike down an embankment, overturning in a ditch.

Eyler was thrown half-way through an open window but escaped with bruises and the car was not damaged. It was mired in the mud, however, and help from a garage was needed to pull it out.

Several other seniors driving to Xenia, nicked him up and after Eyler had put on dry wearing apparel he returned to the party.

kind of carbon do you buy for your motor?

THE presence of carbon in an automobile engine shows that oil has reached vital areas where heat is most intense. Due to the heat, some of the oil naturally will be burned. But the carbon formed need not be excessive and it must be harmless.

Many oils, fine lubricants in other respects, leave excessive carbon of a hard and flinty nature. The small amount of carbon which forms in an engine lubricated by Shell Motor Oil is soft, fluffy and non-fouling. It does not cling to moving parts or bake on metal surfaces.

Automotive engineers will tell you that the most difficult points to lubricate are the wrist pin bearing and the space between the top inch of the cylinder wall and the upper piston ring.

Shell engineers have developed an oil which reaches these parts—and all parts of an automobile engine. But it leaves only a negligible amount of soot-like carbon when burned.

Regular users of Shell Motor Oil report a surprising freedom from carbon troubles: fewer carbon removal jobs; no power losses due to pitted valves or "frozen" piston rings. But, more than that... they enjoy the complete satisfaction which comes from a smooth, sweet-running engine.

Shell Motor Oil is today's outstanding achievement in the science of automobile lubrication—the motor oil with all four essentials of complete and thorough lubrication: Little Carbon... Soft Carbon... Body... and Low Pour Point.

Refined by the new Shell-developed, low-temperature process from crude which is produced in Shell's own vast fields. Never scorched or weakened by the high temperatures of ordinary refinery practice. Tested 259 times to check and certify the rich, unvarying quality of every quart.

REPORT WOMAN HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, was investigating circumstances of an auto accident which occurred at 7:30 a. m. Thursday when a Ford coupe, bearing license number 268,385, left the Springfield-Xenia Pike, ran across the adjacent tracks of the Springfield and Xenia Railway Co. and crashed into a pole.

The officer learned that the car was driven by a colored man, who escaped injury, and that a colored woman, also an occupant of the machine, was cut below one knee. The coupe was being driven toward Xenia and was badly damaged. Both are believed to be residents of Springfield.

NO PICNIC FOR ONE SENIOR

Falls In River Then
Auto Goes In Ditch

LAWRENCE EYLER, 17, son of Leroy D. Eyer, 240 Chestnut St., and a senior at Xenia Central High School, is looking around for four-leaf clovers, horse shoes and other good luck tokens.

Eyler had what he considers more than his share of misfortune while attending the annual picnic of his class at the Adair and Garfield summer cottages along the Little Miami River Wednesday.

To start off with the unfortunate student took an unscheduled bath in the river. Crossing the stream in a barge, the boat tilted and Eyler fell in.

He decided he would return home to change his clothes so he borrowed an auto from another student and started for Xenia. Then to make matters worse the car hit a stretch of fresh gravel on the Fairground Road and skidded off the pike down an embankment, overturning in a ditch.

Eyler was thrown half-way through an open window but escaped with bruises and the car was not damaged. It was mired in the mud, however, and help from a garage was needed to pull it out.

Several other seniors driving to Xenia, picked him up and after Eyler had put on dry wearing apparel he returned to the party.

ALL-STEEL BUILT like a SAFE

But two months ago General Electric announced the first ALL-STEEL refrigerator ever built.

The all-steel refrigerator cannot warp. It is strong—built to last. The doors, fitted by hand at the factory, retain their close fit.

The General Electric mechanism is permanently self-oiling, hermetically sealed in a steel casing and mounted up on top, safe from dust and difficulties. Quietly, economically, it constantly maintains the temperature in the refrigerator at several safe degrees below the danger line of 50. It freezes ice cubes rapidly.

These six new models are offered at very low prices on conveniently spaced payments. The small family model, at the factory, is priced at $215.

Listen in on the General Electric Hour every Saturday, 8 to 9 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, over the N. B. C. network of 42 stations.

To the man who drives a high-compression engine—we say
"Try Shell for 30 days"

The small combustion chambers of the modern high-compression engines cannot accommodate even a thin layer of carbon. The small quantity and soft, fluffy character of the carbon in Shell Motor Oil make Shell the ideal lubricant for these new-type cars.

400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline starts quickly, burns completely and delivers full power because it's a "dry" motor fuel. Ought to cost more, but it doesn't.

With Broadway migrating to Hollywood in ever increasing numbers it is interesting to learn that Lenore Ulrich is also due to invade cinema land sometime next month.

Miss Ulrich scored her usual hit in "La Rook", "La Rokee", etc. recently in David Belasco's "Mimi". Rene Adoree likes to hear her name pronounced "Re-nay Ad-or-ay" instead of "Re-knee". Adolphe Menjou, the suave film star, appears in roles in which he demonstrates the height of coolness. When he made his debut before the microphone in a talkie, he was nervous and the second day he was so flustered that he couldn't speak above a whisper. His third trial proved successful however.

Some people seem to have a penchant for mispronouncing proper names, and this is all the more noticeable when the correct pronunciation is obvious. Witness the way Gene Tunney has had to submit to "Tooney".

Screen stars are not the least sufferers in this regard. An easy name like Lon Chaney is often pronounced "Loan" or "Chan-ney" instead of "Chain-ee". Cecil DeMille is called "Se-sil" when his name is really "see-sil" and his last name is "de Mill" and not "de Mile".

Rod La Roque is pronounced "La Rock" but it is often mispronounced.

Miss Ulrich scored her usual hit recently in David Belasco's "Mimi". She is no novice in the flickers. Some years ago she starred in a Warner Bros. picture, "Tiger Rose", which she created originally for Belasco on the stage.

Warners are now going to remake "Tiger Rose" for the talkies, but this time Lupe Velez, the Mexican firebrand, will play the lead. Lenore is scheduled to play the stellar feminine role in Allan Dwan's forthcoming talkie for Fox, "Frozen Justice." The combination of Lenore and Dwan, who is said to be one of the best directors in Hollywood, should make for a good picture. Allan directed Fairbanks in "The Iron Mask" and is credited with making Gloria Swanson from a bathing beauty into a film star.

Adolphe Menjou, the suave film star, appears in roles in which he demonstrates the height of coolness. When he made his debut before the microphone in a talkie, he was nervous and the second day he was so flustered that he couldn't speak above a whisper. His third trial proved successful however.

W. W. GALLOWAY WILL DELIVER MEMORIAL TALK AT CEDARVILLE

W. W. Galloway, commander of the Wallace Anderson Post, American Legion, Cedarville, will deliver the address at the Memorial Day services to be held in the Old Massies Creek Cemetery. The program of the day will be in charge of Cedar Cliff Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution of Cedarville.

AMARIAH SUTTON IS SUDDENLY CLAIMED BY DEATH THURSDAY

Amariah Sutton, 54, was found dead near a barn on his farm two miles northeast of Bowersville at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Coroner F. M. Chambliss pronounced death due to heart trouble, from which he had been suffering.

Mrs. Bertha Sutton, his wife, had gone to Bowersville and the farmer was alone on the farm, engaged in carrying fertilizer from the barn to a buggy, preparatory to going to the fields to work. The body was found by William Linton, hardware merchant of Bowersville, who went to the farm to repair a planter.

Linton did not notice the body at first but it was called to his attention by his little boy, who had accompanied him to the farm.

Dr. C. E. Roam, Bowersville, was summoned and the physician notified Coroner Chambliss.

Mr. Sutton had lived most of his life in Greene County. He is survived by his widow, Bertha; one son, Roscoe Sutton, Xenia; two daughters, Mrs. Ralph Hurley, Portsmouth, and Mrs. Doris Mark, Washington, C. H.; one brother, J. G. Sutton, Sabina, and two sisters, one living at Cleveland, O., and the other in Kansas.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

Representatives of the G. A. R. and Joseph P. Foody Post, American Legion, will have part in the program.

About eighteen months ago Cedar Cliff chapter began the restoration of this old historic spot. The chapter is marking the graves of the Revolutionary soldiers and will continue until all soldiers' graves are marked. There are graves of fifty-one soldiers which have been located.

The chapter is sponsoring the re-claiming of this cemetery and invites relatives and friends to cooperate with it in this work, so all soldiers buried there may be located and the names placed on the roll.

The chapter has petitioned the township trustees for a public road to enter the cemetery, so it may be entered at any time during the year.

This cemetery was one of the first to be made in Greene County. It was in 1804 that Mr. James Stevenson gave the Associate Church, three acres of ground for a church building and hitching lot with cemetery adjoining.

Sterling 925/1000 Fine

A charming life companion this lovely pattern in Sterling silver—bespeaking always with quiet dignity your good taste and knowledge of fine design.

Inspired by the rich beauty of the William and Mary period, this pattern is especially appropriate with furniture and furnishings of early English design, and with our own early American which is so closely related.

Richly embellished with fascinating motifs of arabesque marquetry, it is nevertheless easy to keep clean because the decoration is sunken in the manner of flat chasing. Quite an unusual effect—indeed, table silver of the utmost distinction.

The Mary II

"Treasure" Solid Silver
Sterling 925/1000 Fine

A charming life companion this lovely pattern in Sterling silver—bespeaking always with quiet dignity your good taste and knowledge of fine design.

Inspired by the rich beauty of the William and Mary period, this pattern is especially appropriate with furniture and furnishings of early English design, and with our own early American which is so closely related.

Richly embellished with fascinating motifs of arabesque marqueterie, it is nevertheless easy to keep clean because the decoration is sunken in the manner of flat chasing. Quite an unusual effect—indeed, table silver of the utmost distinction.
